New England's Welcome to Willkie—Huge crowd, spotted with "Wendell Willkie for President" banners, cheers the Republican nominee as he stops at New London, Ct., on his campaign drive through New England. From here, Willkie entered Rhode Island. He'll be in Boston tomorrow.

BOMBS BLAST ST. PAUL'S

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP)—Destruction of the high altar of St. Paul's Cathedral was announced by the British Air Ministry today as Nazi warplanes returned to the attack on London this forenoon after the longest night assault of the war.

St. Paul's, famous for centuries as a London landmark, is the work of Sir Christopher Wren, 17th century English architect, and contains the tombs of Wellington and Nelson, two of Britain's greatest fighting men.

A single German bomb, missing the great dome already menaced many times in the past two months, plunged through the roof at the eastern end and, with a terrific roar, smashed to dusty fragments the altar where generations of Englishmen had worshipped.

The choir stalls, the air ministry said, were undamaged.

It had been disclosed earlier that a famous church was hit shortly before midnight last night.

CANON BARELY ESCAPES

The bomb struck the double roof of the ancient building, near the eastern end, and hurled tons of masonry down on the altar 90 feet below.

Canon Alexander was sleeping in the crypt, his bed almost exactly beneath the altar and near the tombs of Nelson and Wellington, but the canon escaped injury.

"The crash came suddenly," he said, "I hurried upstairs, but the place was so thick with dust that for a time I could see nothing.

"I suppose the damage might have been worse, but it was quite bad enough.

"The cross and candlesticks went from the high altar. The cross was particularly beautiful."

The lost candlesticks, immense bronze copies of originals in St. Bavon's Cathedral at Ghent, and the cross were presented privately to the cathedral about 40 years ago.

FAMOUS ART RUINED

The black and gold marble altar was comparatively modern. Four flower vases, designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens, which normally stood by the altar, had been removed.

The pediment of a stone reredos (altar screen) suffered, but the dcorations of the Jesus chapel, at the very end of the building behind the altar, were unscathed. The picture over the altar, a copy of Cima da Conegliano's "Incredulity of Thomas," was gashed and pitted by flying stones.

The flying fragments also punctured stained glass windows.

Almost under the altar lie the tombs which make up "Painters' Corner"—the sepulchres of such artists as Lord Leighton, Benjamin West, Sir Thomas Lawrence, Landseer, Sir John Millais, Turner, Sir Joshua Reynolds and Holman Hunt.

Although buried elsewhere, John Singer Sargent is commemorated there with a figure of the Redemp-

U. S. TANKS ARRIVE—Turned over to Canada by the United States government, a long train-load of "Whippet" tanks of World War vintage arrives at Canada's Camp Borden. They'll be used to train dominion tank corps.

AXIS PACT TO AID U.S., JAPS SAY

TOKYO, Oct. 10 (INS)—The Italo-German-Japanese military agreement was framed "for" the United States and not against that country, former Minister Yosuke Matsuoka declared tonight.

"With regards to the tri-partite pact, it is my earnest wish that such a powerful nation as the United States and that all other nations at present neutral should not become involved in the European war or come by any chance into conflict with Japan because of the China incident or otherwise.

"The agreement was made for the United States, not against that country.

"In short, it is a peace pact."

The majority of the Americans here accepted calmly the official U. S. advice to leave the Orient.

Families of members of the embassy staff and of naval officers were expected to remain.

Steamship companies reported little immediate effect from the advice to leave. The President lines said they were tentatively booked through March, largely by European refugees, many of whom would be unable to sail because of visa difficulties.

The 50-year-old American-owned Japan Advertiser ended its independent existence today following a merger with the Japanese-owned Japan Times and Mail. The merger is considered by observers as one more indication of the growing American-Japanese tension.

Chinese Attempt to Bomb Japanese Newspaper

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10 (INS)—Attempted bombing of a pro-Japanese newspaper today increased tension in Shanghai.

Chinese Terrorists, marking the nation's "Fourth of July," tossed two bombs into the building which houses the central China Daily News, organ of the Nanking puppet regime.

Real Thunder, Not Hitler's, Has London Jittery

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP)—Sirens sounded and thousands dashed for raid shelters when several mysterious explosions roiled over London.

It turned out to be a brief thunderstorm. Bomb-wearied Londoners had forgotten what real thunder sounded like.

The ensuing all-clear signal and the explanation produced many sheepish grins.

U. S., BRITAIN IN SECRET TALK ON FAR EAST DEFENSE

By ROBERT G. NIXON

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 10—Secret negotiations between the United States and Great Britain on possible joint defense action in the Pacific were revealed today by R. A. Butler, undersecretary of foreign affairs, to the House of Commons.

The disclosure, which indicates a tightening Anglo-American bond against the new Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance, came in reply to questioning and few details were disclosed.

The government spokesman stated, however, that the discussions have not yet been completed.

QUESTION ABOUT U. S.

The brief answer was given by Butler, in reply to Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Independent. Wedgwood had asked:

"Will His Majesty's government tell what progress has been made in Anglo-American co-operation in the Pacific, whether the Russian, Chinese and Dutch governments are co-operating and are being consulted and whether there is a possibility of America protecting the Dutch East Indies?"

Butler replied:

"The House may rest assured that the importance of contact with friendly governments on matters of common interest is fully appreciated by His Majesty's government."

Wedgwood pressed the matter further by asking:

"Is consultation presently occuring regarding the Pacific?"

"Certain conversations are occurring which are of considerable importance," Butler answered.

URGE MUNITIONS EMBARGO

"Are they concluded or continuing?" Wedgewood asked.

"They are not concluded," Butler replied.

Asked to consider the possibility of representation to the United States to prevent export of oil to Japan, Butler pointed out that American prohibitions related only to certain grades but added that Britain was in touch with Washington on the matter.

Other members, including Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, and National Laborite Sir Henry Morris-Jones, urged that both Britain and the United States refrain from sending any war materials to Japan.

"The importance of the matter is fully realized," Butler said. "His majesty's government can be depended upon to adopt the best policy as circumstances arise."

Hull Confirms U. S., Britain Parley Story

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (INS)—Secretary of State Hull today confirmed a statement in the House of Commons that the United States and Great Britain are conducting conversations on the Far Eastern situation, but he indicated they were only designed to keep each government informed of the other's activities, and were not aimed at any formal agreements.

He stressed that as yet no decisions had been reached.

Italians Report Loss Of 392 Men in Africa

ROME, Oct. 10 (INS)—Italian forces in North Africa lost 392 soldiers and airmen during September, it was announced today. Army casualties were listed as 156 Italian soldiers killed, 13 missing and 389 wounded. Among native troops 209 were killed and 207 wounded.

U. S. Reporter In London Hit By Shrapnel

LONDON, Oct. 10 (INS)—The first air raid casualty among members of the International News Service London staff was suffered today by Robert G. Nixon, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., and Washington, D. C.

Nixon was grazed on the head by a piece of shrapnel.

Examination by a doctor showed the wound was not serious. Nixon proceeded to the House of Commons to cover the day's debates.

Italians Ready For Egypt Push

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN EGYPT, Oct. 10 (AP)—Sudden activity of Italian desert patrols around Sidi Barrani after three weeks of quiet led British military men to believe today that the Italians are making final preparations for their long-awaited "big push" into Egypt.

The British, strongly reinforced by Australian, New Zealand and "Free French" troops which have been streaming into Egypt expressed confidence in their ability to throw back such an offensive.

F.D. 'Bungling' Hit In Willkie R.I. Talk

By AUSTEN LAKE

WITH THE WILLKIE CAVALCADE, Oct. 10—Hammering home a two-fisted attack on "the Third Term Candidate" as having "bungled both domestic and international affairs," Wendell F. Willkie swept through Little Rhody today to be greeted by crowds that even his most enthusiastic supporters had failed to anticipate.

Even the youngsters played "hookey" from school to get a glimpse of the Republican candidate for the presidency and hear his resonant Midwest voice ring out in the clear Indian summer air.

There must have been at least a thousand representatives of Young America in the throng at the Westerly station. And this was no official holiday.

His schedule had called for only a 10-minute stop at this first town on the road to invading industrial Rhode Island—territory that Alfred Landon found quietly hostile four years ago—but if Westerly was a sample of the State, Willkie can safely count it tucked in his pocket.

The town has a top population of 10,000, and everyone couldn't have quit work to greet the G. O. P.'s hope for chief executive, but there were more than 12,000 wildly cheering persons on hand to greet him.

Out rang the old battle cry of the Philadelphia G. O. P. convention, "We Want Willkie," echoing the same chant that was sweet music to the candidate's ears after addressing a throng of 10,000 across the state line in New London, Ct., only an hour before.

It was the same at East Greenwich where the campaigner and his entourage left the special train and changed into buses. A far smaller community, this town turned out more than 5000.

Where to see Willkie on his New England tour—Page 16

PLEADS TO MILLWORKERS

Willkie went after the millworkers' vote in town after town with a blistering attack on the Administration, an appeal to them to "save themselves."

The power of his attack and the sweep of his drive, the crowds he attracted and the cheers they gave him left even critical New Dealers wondering.

Jubilant G. O. P. campaigners called Willkie's the best reception a Republican candidate for any office ever received.

Even more temperate nonpartisan observers called it "the best reception a Republican has received in this section in 25 years."

Woonsocket turned out a crowd of better than 10,000 to greet the cavalcade at Depot sq. Two bands played, but their music was lost

Aged Realty Man Gives Away Riches

A wealthy Boston real estate man, member of a family prominent in the city for generations, has given more than $36,000 to 12 strangers in the last four months, Boston police revealed today.

Police said they had been called by persons who had learned of the situation and who believed that the man, now well along in years might be a victim of racketeers.

Six men were taken into custody for questioning yesterday, suspected of having dealings with the unnamed philanthropist.

TAXI MAN'S SANTA CLAUS

One man admitted he had been receiving $7 a day from the friend whom he "just met by accident—he didn't know me from Adam"—for the past month. He had saved most of the $210 he had received, and had it in his pockets when picked up.

Another beneficiary was a taxi driver, who said he had been given two checks by "Santa Claus," each of which ran well into three figures.

Friends of the real estate man—who is a member of several exclusive clubs, a trustee for a number of rich estates, and is well known in military, social and business life in Boston—said he had given much larger amounts to other down-and-outers.

"He'll just see some poor bum sitting on a bench, or some poor hard-working guy struggling to get along without a cent, and he'd start giving him money," police were told.

KNOWS HIS RIGHTS

The investigation had just got well under way, with police looking for the big recipients of the man's goodill, when the elderly man himself appeared at police headquarters.

"I know what I'm doing," he said. "I have more than enough money. If I want to help out my fellow men who have not been fortunate, who is to stop me?"

Police admitted no one could. They released the six men picked up for questioning.

Willkie Train Perils R. I. Crowd

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 10—Tragedy was narrowly averted here today when the Willkie special train started to back into the throng jammed around the nearby platform of the station.

State police formed a flying wedge to force the crowd back out of danger. Several persons were knocked down and trampled during the melee, but police reported none was injured.

The presidential candidate, who was waving to the crowd as the train started to move, showed his alarm, but the train was stopped before it had traversed the space cleared by the police on the outer fringe of the crowd.

Dragger Rams Cutter, Sinks; 9 Men Saved

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 10 (AP)—The 95-foot Gloucester fishing dragger Inca sank early today after a collision with the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Chelan, but her crew of nine was rescued and brought into this port.

Lieut.-Commdr. E. G. Brooks of the Chelan reported the cutter, en route from Boston to Curtis Bay, Md., had been holding her course with danger lights full on when the Inca "failed to heed our passing and emergency signal" and struck the Chelan "without warning."

The collision occurred three miles southeast of Dumpling Rock, off New Bedford.

Her bow stove in, the Inca was kept afloat for an hour by the Chelan's crew, who rigged a bridle to buoy the fishing craft against the cutter and then put pumps aboard. Water pouring through the hole in the bow, however, gained on the pumps, and the Inca settled in about 20 feet of water.

Joseph Ciarmitaro, Jr., owner-captain of the fisherman, declared:

"We were blinded by the rising sun and missed the light on the Chelan. We heard the whistle a moment later, but it was too late."

The Inca, 20 tons, was proceeding into New Bedford harbor with a 30,000-pound catch.

Brooks said a court of inquiry would be held, possibly aboard the Guard cutter Tahoe, now in New Bedford, either later today or tomorrow.

George Jessel and Girl Bride at Odds

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (INS)—The marriage of George Jessel, 42-year-old comedian, and his 16-year-old bride, Lois Andrew, is on the rocks, according to a story by Broadway Columnist Dorothy Kilgallen today in the New York Journal and American.

The highly publicized romance between the two is blighted by Jessel's memory of his former wife, Norma Talmadge, the report said.

Friends of the showgirl-bride were quoted as saying that she might head toward Reno in a couple of weeks. These same friends were said to have heard Lois state:

"I can't compete with Norma."

The Jessel-Andrew marriage took place in Detroit last April 13 after a courtship which started in Miami and reached its peak in New York night clubs. The previous August Norma Talmadge received a Mexican divorce. At that time Jessel said:

"We've been in love with each other for many, many years. I believe and hope that we will finish our lives together."

Brookline Socialite Divorced

The marital knot which bound a socially prominent Brookline couple was severed in Suffolk Probate Court today when Mrs. Margaret D. Phillips was awarded a divorce from John McCandlish Phillips of Brookline.

Mrs. Phillips had petitioned on the grounds of desertion and the suit was uncontested. Under a stipulation she was allowed $17 a week alimony and custody of their 13-year-old son, John McCandlish Phillips, Jr.

The divorce ends a society romance which culminated in the marriage at Trinity Church in Boston, Aug. 17, 1926, of the beautiful Margaret Wick Dukelow to the young and wealthy Phillips.

SUED MOTHER-IN-LAW

On Dec. 4, 1927, the union was blessed with the birth of a son, who was named after his father.

Six years later society was shocked when Mrs. Phillips brought suit in Dedham Superior court against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Louis M. C. Williams of Brookline and Marblehead, claiming $100,000 heart balm for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

In addition to claiming that Mrs. Williams caused her husband to leave her, Mrs. Phillips alleged that her mother-in-law had made an unsuccessful attempt to have her incarcerated in an insane asylum.

SUIT SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Mrs. Phillips, in filing the suit, declared that she wanted it made clear that the plight of her boy, then 5 years old, was the real reason behind the action.

"The reason I am taking this action," she said, "is because my child and I are considerably in want since my husband left me. My baby's grandmother has refused to do anything at all to help him. My husband was at his mother's house, but where he is now I do not know."

Records at the Superior Court in Dedham show that Mrs. Phillips' suit was settled by agreement on Feb. 6, 1936, without going to trial.

Mrs. Phillips and the boy are now living in Strathmore rd., Brighton.

2-Day Bride Dies; Ushers Pallbearers

Six friends who were ushers at the joyous wedding of Anna Connolly and Edward Roach last Sunday will act as pallbearers to carry the pretty bride to her last rest tomorrow.

For Mrs. Roach died two days after the ceremony. Today, she was in a coffin, clad in her wedding gown and veil.

Sunday, there was a gay wedding breakfast for the couple. On Monday, the bride was stricken with a mastoid infection and was rushed to her home on Wayland st., Roxbury. Tuesday, she died.

The Roaches had been ready to spend their honeymoon at the World's Fair.

Instead, the bride will be buried from the home of her husband's mother in Hallen st., Dorchester. Interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Ushers at the wedding who will be pall bearers at the funeral at St. William's Church, Dorchester ave., Dorchester, are Thomas Roach, John Kvicala, Victor Kroll, Thomas Corrigan, Charles Tuttle and James Rocciali.

"It was like Anna to be brave," her stricken husband said today. "She had been hiding her illness for a long time so it wouldn't upset the wedding plans."

White was her wedding gown, but black was the death that hovered unseen over the marriage celebration on Sunday . . . when pretty Anna Connolly was married to Edward Roach. Today, white is her shroud, and black the death that came to the smiling bride on Tuesday . . . sudden death brought on by mastoid complications.

Nazi Troopships Seen in Danube

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 10 (AP)—Six German troopships, flying the Swastika banner, passed down the Danube river by Belgrade tonight, Yugoslav officials expressed the belief the troops were enroute to Rumania.

Two long freight trains, carrying war materials for both Rumania and Bulgaria, passed through Maribor, near the Yugoslav-German frontier.

4 Burlesque Houses Warned

Four Boston burlesque houses today were given 24 hours to clean up their shows and lobby displays in an ultimatum laid down by City Censor John J. Spencer.

Spencer declared he "read the riot act" to the four burlesque managers. He said he would give them no further notice but would crack down on future violations.

He also issued a new regulation for burlesque, forbidding the portrayal of any clergyman in any light which might suggest ridicule of religion.

MAN HELD SANE IN BODY CASE

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 10 (AP)—A commission ruled today that Karl Tanzler Van Costel, who kept the carefully preserved body of a young woman beside him for seven years, is sane.

The sanity commission discharged the 70-year-old unemployed X-ray specialist after a lengthy examination at which he was reported to have answered technical scientific questions.

Van Cosel remained in jail, however, pending a peace justice's decision on charges of removing the corpse from its tomb.

The aging man clung to a hope that he might regain possession of the wax-encased body of the girl, even though County Judge Lord told him it would be reburied at request of the girl's sister, Mrs. Maria Medina.

"She is mine. Her father gave her to me. I am more entitled to her than her sister," the white-bearded man told Judge Lord. "I will carry the fight to the highest courts in the land if I live long enough to obtain sufficient funds."

Shortly before a preliminary hearing on a grave-disturbing charge, Van Cosel said he wanted "to finish the job" of restoring the body of Elena Hoyos Mesa to life likeness. He declared he kept the reconstructed form in his room for seven years.

WALSH, PARKMAN CLASH ON WAR AID

Senator David I. Walsh, seeking re-election, registered objection today to "official aid to the Allies," while Henry Parkman, his Republican opponent, advocated rendering them all possible aid "consistent with our neutral status."

Walsh and Parkman outlined their positions in response to a questionnaire sent out by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. Both expressed approval "in general" to the organization's stand on foreign policy, which declared:

"The league has urged that the influence of the United States be used to promote peaceful relations among countries and to discourage aggression. Before and after the outbreak of hostilities in Europe it supported legislation to permit aid to the Allies as victims of aggression.

"It has worked for legislation to promote a freer flow of international trade. It has supported efforts to promote close co-operation among the Americas. It has supported the efforts of the administration to stop Japanese aggression in China."

Walsh said he had no objection "to individuals, or private industry giving aid to the Allies," and added "it seems we should try to maintain official neutrality toward all wars now raging in Europe and Asia."

Parkman said he had advocated transfer of over-age destroyers to England, approved legislation to repeal the embargo, and expressed opposition to Japanese aggression in China, adding he would "support all efforts on the part of the next administration to stop it."

President to Address Nation Election Eve

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Democratic national committee announced today that President Roosevelt would address the nation in a radio broadcast election eve, probably from his Hyde Park home.

From other sources it was learned the national committee has contracted for radio time from 10 p. m. to midnight on all major networks on the night before election, with the exception of an hour from 10 to 11 p. m. over Columbia Broadcasting System already engaged by the Republicans.

Many Escape Devil's Island To Fight Nazis

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Oct. 10 (INS)—The famous French penal colony of Cayenne—Devil's Island—is in rebellion against the Vichy government and its convicts are escaping in droves in an effort to join up with Britain.

This information was brought here by three escaped convicts who arrived last night in a 25-foot canoe.

The uprising is not confined to the convicts themselves. The men who arrived here disclosed that one of the colony's military commandants, Capt. Chaudont, led a group of 200 convicts to Georgetown, British Guiana.

There Chaudont sought permission to continue on to Canada in the hope all would be permitted to enlist in the Canadian army.

Recent reports received here indicate that other officers are of similar mind and are endeavoring to facilitate escape of convicts who wish to bear arms against the Reich. The Vichy government, it is understood, has cut off the subsidy by which Cayenne formerly was supported, rendering the task of feeding and maintaining the prisoners a difficult one.

The convicts reaching here confirmed that unrest was rife among the 2000 who still remain in the jungle-infested colony.

Rice to Visit Sick Brother in Brookline

EDGARTOWN, Oct. 10—Ralph Huntington Rice, elocution teacher, acquitted yesterday in the murder of Mrs. Clara M. Smith, 74, will resume his career as a musician and teacher of diction, he declared today.

Rice, shaken by the strain of the first murder trial on Martha's Vineyard in 280 years, will rest here for a few days, then go to Brookline to visit his brother, Philelah Rice, who is seriously ill.

"While in Boston," he said, "I will stay with my other brother, the Rev. Bernard Rice, and then go to New York to continue my musical career and concert work.

"I'm broke right now; I've been wiped out of all I had and I must regain something to live on. I'm not discouraged and I'll start all over again."

Asked how he felt at being freed of the murder charge, Rice said:

"Naturally I feel wonderful. I had no doubt of my innocence but as to the outcome of the trial, you can never tell what others may do or think. It's wonderful to be free again and exonerated."

The verdict of the jury, which was delivered after 45 minutes of deliberation, still leaves as a mystery the identity of the assailant who murdered the elderly woman.

Gang Killer Suspect Held

While police today took extra precautions to prevent gangland reprisals for th emurder of Salvatore "Sacbo" Carrese, West End racketeer, Alfred Lanza, 29, of Allen st., was arraigned before Judge Joseph Riley in Municipal court, charged with the slaying.

Lanza entered no plea after reading of the warrants, charging first degree murder and obliterating the serial number of a revolver, and was committed to the Charles st. jail without bail to await trial.

The warrants were obtained from Judge Elijah J. Adlow in the warrant session by Police Capt. William Donovan and Sergt. Michael Stapleton of the Joy st. station.

While Lanzi was being taken into court, police were carefully guarding the identity of three material witnesses, fearing they may be marked for gangland vengeance.

Police claim that Carrese was "rubbed out" in a feud over attempts to shake down night spots, drug stores and cafes, in the Scollay and Bowdoin sq. district.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

F.D. Signs New Defense Bill

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed into law today a $228,132,013 appropriations bill which contains approximately $170,000,000 for agencies contributing to the national defense program.

The measure contains $40,000,000 for development of not more than 250 public airports, to be selected by a special board, in connection with expansion of the military air forces.

DRAFT MAY SHIFT WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP)—Draft officials today envisioned the voluntary shifting of skilled workers from one section of the country to another in the interest of keeping jobs in national defense industries fully manned.

The army-navy munitions board, it was disclosed, has undertaken a survey of labor shortages in skilled trades. This, officials said, may serve as a basis in some areas for deferment of properly qualified workers from military service.

Emphasizing that all decisions on such cases would be made by local selective drafts, officials said, however, there would be close co-operation between stat employment agencies, draft authorities and federal defense leadrs.

CITE N. E. SITUATION

In areas such as New England, where highly trained mechanics have lost jobs through migration of industries to the South, it was said, some geographical shifting of men may result. Such men, officials declared, fill essential places in rapidly expanding defense industries, like the machine tool and optical glass industries.

Where draft questionnaires disclose substantial numbers of idle, skilled workmen who could be effectively employed elsewhere, it was expected State employment agencies would inform the men of the opportunity.

One official suggested the defense advisory commission's labor division might undertake to provide transportation in cases of that kind.

WARN OF JOB SHIFT

Selective service headquarters advised men against flocking to defense industries for jobs in the hope of evading the draft.

"The chances for such men being selected for military training will be increased rather than diminished," said Maj. Joseph F. Battley, "because one of the first things a local board will want to know about a man claiming occupational deferment is how long he has been on his current job."

Battley said the army did not want to conscript any man if his removal from a civilian job would interfere with an industry's productivity.

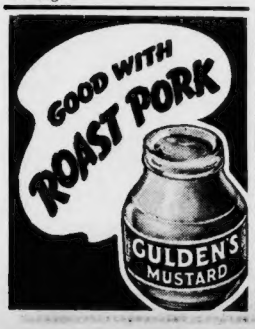
Draft Boards Meet Monday

Massachusetts draft board members, appointed by Governor Saltonstall and approved by the President, meet at the State House in a series of meetings beginning Monday to plan smooth performance of the Selective Service act.

Gov. Saltonstall announced he probably would administer the oath of office to those chosen at the meetings, as well as instruct members in their duties.

The first organization meetings of the various boards are to be held on registration day, Oct. 16, when each board will choose its own chairman and secretary.

First business of the boards will be to receive the registration cards, shuffle them and number them. On receipt of the order in which men are to be drawn—fixed by national lottery—the real work of the boards will begin.



"Why hasn't somebody told me these things?"

Maybe you're in the same boat—so listen. I like smart looking clothes, same as the next fellow. Been paying plenty, too! Now how would you feel, when a lot of the fellows who call you "Boss" start putting up a better front? Frank W.—he's one of my salesmen—gave me the lowdown. "Frank", I grunted. "What have you got that I haven't got, to make your clothes fit and look so much better?"..."Guess it's the Bond habit, Boss", he chuckled. "You see, Bond clothes are made in Rochester. And those Rochester fellows do things with a needle and thread that'd make The Hunchback of Notre Dame look like Gable. Try Bond and see." Best advice I've had in years. Never knew a few subtle style touches made such a difference. Got a lesson in sensible spending, too! "The Bond habit"—humph! Should have had it long ago.

Bond's low-set collar gives you that vigorous square-shoulder-look flattering to all men. A Rochester-quality feature seldom seen in any but expensive custom suits.

DE GAULLE TAKES OVER CAMEROONS

DUALA, CAMROONS, WITH THE D'GAULLE EXPEDITION, Oct. 9—Delayed—(AP)—Gen. Charles DeGaulle landed here today and raised his standard of the "free French" forces on French soil for the first time since the French-German armistice.

DeGaulle stepped ashore from the gunboat Commandant Duboc, which took part in the ill-started attempt to land at Dakar.

He kissed Gov.-Gen. Leclerc on both cheeks and then the two reviewed native soldiers and sailors of the Cameroons garrison on the pier.

The Cameroons decided some time ago to join DeGaulle's movement to carry on the war against Germany.

A great cheer went up from members of the De Gaulle expedition as an officer of the garrison shouted on their arrival:

AMID WILD CHEERING

"Here you are at home and there's plenty of Pinard!" (The latter refers to the ordinary red wine traditional to French soldiers.)

While the members of the expedition were debarking, Gen. De Gaulle, who has been administering the "Free French" fight against Germany from London, drove through the densely packed streets of the beflagged city to the governor's palace.

There he was presented to local officials and native chieftains, many of whom had come from Senegal, Dahomey and the Ivory coast to join his fight.

Until his arrival in the Cameroons, Gen. De Gaulle had not been reported since the failure on Sept. 23-25 of his British-supported expedition to Dakar to win over Senegal from the Vichy government.

Crowds Hail Duce; Keeps War Plans Secret

PADUA, Italy, Oct. 10 (AP)—Mussolini witnessed a great military demonstration on this historic plain today—a show which some observers believed might be the prelude to a new Axis thrust—but refrained from any speech or hint of Axis intent.

It had been expected he might choose the occasion of his review of 26,000 young Fascist soldiers to deliver an address. The newspaper Il Piccolo called the parade "a prologue" to understand events to come.

Delegations from semi-military Fascist type organizations in Spain, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria participated in the review, in addition to a group of German Nazis.

Freighter Here Tries To Beat Jap Embargo

The Greek freighter Olga E. Embiricos today was racing against time to load 3200 tons of scrap iron at Mystic Wharf in Charlestown before the October 16 deadline on exporting the metal to Japan.

The ship took on 4300 tons of scrap at Providence and is expected to sail for Japan well ahead of the deadline.

Britain Speeds Vast Bomb Shelter Plan

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP)—Britain's vigorous new home secretary, Laborite Herbert Morrison, told Commons today the government had in motion a big new program to shelter the populace from air raids, but he warned Britons ironically they should "sue for peace now" if they hoped for complete immunity.

"We know what to expect when we entered the war," Morrison declared, "and we are now experiencing, as civilians, what was experienced by soldiers in the last war.

"Horrible as it is, we must go through with it or surrender."

He shouted:

"We are not going to surrender!" As the House thundered its approval, "because it would mean for many years something much more terrible than our present experiences."

Morrison said it was "very doubtful" if deep shelters could be provided for the whole populations of such cities as London, Liverpool and Glasgow and urged the general use of small shelters rather than in the communal shelters as the best immediate remedy.

He pledged speeding up of shelter construction.

A quick survey of subway accommodations to make the best use of the tubes.

NAZIS SET BIG FIRES IN LONDON

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (AP) — Informed German sources said today Nazi fliers observed four big fires in the vicinity of the Houses of Parliament buildings in London during the early morning.

The high command itself said the "heaviest damage was inflicted on docks in the Thames bend" in an all-night raid which followed an incessant day attack.

Pilots of Nazi observation planes, reporting to Berlin, said they saw one extensive blaze still burning in central London today.

Nazi bombers claimed scores of direct hits on fortifications and railroad stations in south England this morning with heavy and medium caliber bombs.

Informed sources declared that several hundred night fliers unloaded more than 200,000 pounds of explosives on London.

Direct hits which destroyed hangars, barracks and grounded planes at St. Eval, Penrose and St. Merryn, among "several" airports attacked in central and southern England.

Irish Refugees Flee London Raid Terrors

By HUGH WAGNON

DUBLIN, Ireland, Oct. 10 (AP)—Ireland is welcoming home her children from bomb-wracked London. An average of 200 refugees a day has been streaming into this country since the Germans started heavy bombing attacks on England in September.

Day after day, night after night, Irish are returning to their homeland. Some come with a dozen trunks; others carry only pathetic bundles of belongings they have saved from wrecked London homes.

I saw a baby girl cling to her mother's skirts and whimper at the sound of a foghorn after an Irish mail steamer docked at Dun Laoghaire, Dublin's port.

TERROR OF SIRENS

"Siren, mummy, siren," she cried.

Her mother soothed her. "There will be no more sirens now, baby," she said. "Look at the lights. We're safe in Ireland."

The refugees came ashore in dazed groups, mostly women and children. Red Cross workers provided tea for adults and milk for the children.

The Red Cross gave transportation to their homes or to hotels offering reduced rates until they are able to get trains for home.

Some of the babies were born during air raids.

One baby girl was named "Siren" because, her mother explained, the "all clear" siren was wailing when she was born.

RAIDS "MARK" CHILDREN

Others, barely able to talk, babbled of alarms, raids, bombs and shelters.

One mother carried month-old twins born during an air raid.

Another told of being forced to leave two of her seven children in a London railway station when they strayed away. Red Cross workers promised to aid in the search for them.

Not all who wish to come home to Ireland live to see her green hills.

A London woman wrote a cousin here, describing "hellish nights" of bombing and expressing a wish to return to Ireland.

Three days later the cousin received word she had been killed by a bomb.

U. S. WARSHIP AGROUND

GROTON, Ct., Oct. 10 (AP)—The U. S. Navy destroyer Roper, operating off shorein conection with maneuvers of submarines from the New London base, ran aground in the harbor here today. Naval officials withheld all information concerning the grounding of the vessel.

British-Rumania Break Seen Near

BUCHAREST, Oct. 10 (AP)—British legation officials began destroying secret documents today, apparently indicating a break in diplomatic relations with Rumania was near as German troops filtered into the country.

Bombs Blast Famed St. Paul's Cathedral

In the west portion of the crypt lies the great sarcophagus of Cornish porphyry which encloses the remains of the Duke of Wellington and nearby the coffin of Lord Nelson, modeled from the mainmast of the French ship L'Orient and enclosed with black and white marble.

There is also a bust of George Washington, placed in the crypt in 1921.

St. Paul's was the scene of the service of consecration, April 20, 1917, marking the entrance of the United States into the World War, and the national thanksgiving service July 6, 1919.

NAZIS COME IN WAVES

The southwesterly gale which whipped the channel yesterday was still raging today, with intermittent periods of heavy showers and bright sunshine when the first waves of German planes moved against England.

The forenoon air raid today was brief. It was followed by two others in the afternoon. In the first of these a bomb hit some houses, wounding a number of persons.

The other alarm lasted only a short time and persons in central London could hear light gunfire in the distance.

Ceaseless waves of Nazi warplanes participated in the nightlong assault, penetrating the city's inner defenses and loosing a rain of incendiary and high explosive bombs which made the raid one of the worst the capital has experienced.

More than 50 districts of the battered city were hit, but the government said first reports indicated the casualty list would be "small."

Heavy raids also were carried out against Wales and southwestern, northeastern and northwestern England but they did not compare in violence with the smashing attack on London.

BRITONS BLAST GERMANS

Increasing the scope of its counterblows against Germany to include daylight as well as night forays, Britain's air force meanwhile reported raids deep into Germany and occupied areas and new setbacks to the functioning of the German war machine.

The air ministry said the British successes included hits last night on "enemy" destroyers moored at Brest, important French port out at the tip of Brittany.

Again reported bombed were the big Krupp munitions works at Essen, an oil plant at Cologne and sundry factories, supply depots railway yards, barge concentrations and shipping.

In one daylight raid, said the air ministry news service, railway sidings 50 miles east of Munster were hit by bombs that "burst clean across the tracks."

Berlin sources said single British bombers flew over Holland and Germany but were forced back while still over the western area. They said some bombs were dropped without military damage but none of the raiders reached Berlin.—Editor's note.

Most of the damage in London, was inflicted before midnight.

The government said fires in the city and in suburban areas "were promptly dealt with and all were brought under control. At several points houses were hit and some industrial premises were damaged.

"A number of people were injured, some fatally, in a building in London which was hit by high explosive bomb. No reports of any large number of persons killed or injured have been received from any quarter," the government said.

PROVE ACCURACY

In one London district, during the early part of the night, the "Archies" gave a display of accuracy by knocking down nine of 11 flares dropped by the Nazis.

In the Epping district of Essex, Prime Minister Churchill's constituency northeast of London, an anti-aircraft battery brought down a raider in full view of the prime minister. The plane was hit at great height but searchlights picked out three parachuting Nazi fliers and followed them to earth.

Thousands Give Willkie Big Welcome in Rhode Island

in the roar of applause that greeted Willkie. Whistles in factories toote dand shrilled steadily for 10 minutes to add to the din

POINTS TO BANKRUPTCY

"The Third Term candidate is heading this country down the road to bankruptcy," Willkie told the crowd. "We are going down that road fast.

"In two terms the Administration has spent two-fifths as much money as the government of the United States has cost totally since its inception.

"I pledge you that men on relief will never be taken off the rolls unless they get jobs.

"If we continue at the rate we are going we won't be able to keep anyone on the relief rolls."

Willkie's addresses all along the line centered fire on President Roosevelt for his aspirations to a third term.

"The only excuse offered," declared the candidate, "is that Europe is in a crisis involving the democratic system of government and because of that we should violate our tradition which was established for the purpose of preserving the democratic form of government.

HINTS AT INFLATION

"No man appreciates the crisis in Europe more than I do, but let's look beyond that crisis. Let's assume that in two years the crisis is past, the war is over.

"We elect a president for four years. In Europe there is bound to be inflation, trade problems and things of that kind. Here is a President who has been in office seven and a half years and even the best friends of the administration admit that its domestic policy has been a failure."

Willkie asked: "Do you want the administration following this war to handle the domestic affairs of this nation and take it down the road to inflation?"

And the crowd roared: "No!"

GREETED BY VANDERBILT

"We are told that we are in the middle of the stream. Well, who put us in the middle of the stream?"

"Roosevelt!" the crowd shouted.

"This administration has bungled foreign affairs just as it bungled domestic affairs and that is apparent to everybody," Willkie declared.

Resounding cheers and handclapping followed

The shaggy-haired, big-framed Willkie was met at the Rhode Island line by Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, Lieut.-Gov. James O. McManus and other state Republican officials. They joined the march into the state.

HOLIDAY IN SCHOOLS

At all appearances along the line of march, Willkie never forgot to urge on the gatherings to remember their Republican candidates for office as well as the general ticket.

"So that we can save this blessed land of ours before it is too late, so that we can bring back unity to our people," he urged.

Out of East Greenwich the cavalcade rolled to the little town of River Point, a strong Democratic community nobody but a Willkie would have dared invade.

Its main street was lined as the candidate appeared and while there were "boos" from confirmed, dyed-in-the-wool New Dealers, there were bursts of cheers and prolonged handclappings that warmed the heart of veteran Republican campaigners.

Here Willkie spoke to a crowd that filled the new theatre field beside the high school. Campaign banners flew in the breeze close to the American flags that were guarded by schoolboys. No "holiday" here. It was a holiday.

NEARS BAY STATE

Woonsocket a short swing in Massachusetts, for an appearance at Attleboro, then back to Providence, was the afternoon schedule adhered to closely despite the pleas of the crowds that slowed the progress of the Willkie cavalcade.

In high spirits as a result of his reception in Connecticut and here in Little Rhody, the candidate never forgot to wave to little groups gathered on roads between stops, saluting them with words that were lost in the cheers they gave as he passed.

Although President Roosevelt in spected the United States submarine base at New London in August and Willkie has questioned the non-political tone of the President's recent trips, he made no reference to the subject at New London today nor did he go into national defense matters.

The Massachusetts invasion highlight of the New England campaign—comes tomorrow and Saturday when Willkie will be viewed and speak to more than 3,000,000 Bay Staters.

ONE CHANGE MADE

Only one change has been made in the arrangements

Willkie will speak tomorrow only at Braves Field, although he will make all the promised stops in New Bedford, Fall River, Taunton, Brockton, Lynn and Salem

Experience with the unprecedented Connecticut crowds, which brought delays in the schedule, are not to be repeated in Massachusetts. All of his addresses Saturday—those in Worcester, Springfield and Pittsfield will be given

Republican leaders found new hope of November victory in their candidate's triumphant swing through Connecticut.

ROADS CLOGGED

Not even the screeching sirens of a state police escort could open a path through the towns of Derby, Naugatuck and Meriden, where men and women clogged the roads for a peek at Willkie and would not be denied.

Willkie sat on the folded back flap of his auto top his thatch of brown hair tumbling over his horn-rimmed glasses and with a grin that lasted through 116 long miles.

It was after 8 o'clock and under a bright incandescent moon when he came screaming into his mobile headquarters in the New Haven rail head.

There was a complete blockade there as the cavalcade swung from Church street, to Elm and Temple—the entire procession sat halted in the mass of foot traffic.

Motor cycles bogged down, their riders spraddled motionless. Camp followers deserted their cars and fought for passage to the little, arc-lighted platform — woefully small for the load of politico-calcium-seekers who wanted to be next to No. 1, when the photo men began to flash their bulbs

There was an old decanter of a well known soft drink, filled with water and Willkie swallowed copious drafts as Gov. Raymond E Baldwin of Connecticut made a folksy introduction. It was many minutes before Willkie was allowed to speak the restless surge of the jam packed crowd before his rostrum, bringing forth frightened squeals from women and causing a flying wedge of police to distribute the crush.

It's fun to be a candidate," began Willkie, characteristically lashing his script, and shaking his fist mane over a challenge to "Mister Roosevelt to explain his attitude toward a third term" — A demand that scarcely seems necessary in view of the President's nine weeks of denial of that very charge.

Then seriously, while people leaned to hear, found the lights flickering on the cavalcade standing on the green, he passed on a defense of New Deal frustration of "little business."

"Small business," he said quietly—and he has long since learned the futility of bellowing into the microphones at the cost of voice and fear on his larynx, "needs help and it will get help from me."

Willkie Asks F. D. What He Thinks Of Fourth Term

For the first time in his campaign, Wendell Willkie mentioned his opponent by name as he launched his invasion of New England.

"What does Mr. Roosevelt think of a fourth term," Willkie asked, as he swung through the State of Connecticut.

In all his previous campaign speeches, Willkie had carefully avoided naming the President, always referring to him as "the third term candidate."

Saltonstall, Party Aides, Go To Meet Willkie

Gov. Saltonstall and Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., headed a party of prominent Republicans which left the State House in two buses today to join the Willkie Cavalcade in Attleboro.

In the party were Lieut.-Gov. Horace T. Cahill, State Treasurer William E. Hurley, State Auditor Russell A. Wood, Henry Parkman, Jr., candidate for U. S. senator; Sinclair Weeks, Republican campaign director; Maj. Edward D. Sirois, Republican state chairman; National Committeewoman Mrs. Addison B. Green, Speaker of the House Christian A. Herter, Cong. Charles L. Gifford, Cong. Richard Wigglesworth, former Gov. Frank G. Allen, Gaspar G. Bacon, Philips Ketchum of the Willkie Volunteers, Wallace Stearns and Mrs. Wilbur Davis.

Willkie's Son Joins R. I. Tour

Wendell Willkie's son, Philip, a Harvard student, joined his father and mother just outside Woonsocket this afternoon and rode along in the open car with them to the receptions in that city, in Attleboro and then Providence.

With Willkie, his wife and Philip was Edward Willkie, the candidate's brother. Gov. Vanderbilt and other Rhode Island Republican leaders followed in their own machines.

From New York came word that Cong. Joseph W. Martin had left by air to join the party at Providence

So. Shore Towns Restrain Dogs

South Shore dog owners in three towns face restraining orders of 90 days with the discovery by state health authorities today of the fifth rabies infected animal in the past several weeks.

Two dogs died of rabies in Hingham, it was learned. One died in Weymouth and another in Cohasset. Both Hingham and Weymouth authorities have ordered all dog owners to keep their pets confined for 90 days. Cohasset authorities were expected to take similar action later in the day.

Dr. Henry De Wolfe, district representative of the state public health department, discovered the rabies outbreak after examining a Hingham dog, bitten by a stray.

NERVOUSNESS? RESTLESS NIGHTS?

Is It Your Kidneys?

Active, normal-acting kidneys and bladder expel from the blood excess acids and poisons—that's their health-giving job.

If kidneys are sluggish or inactive, these harmful excess acids and poisons may stay in the blood and spreading through the system cause much misery and distress and bring on ill health in this regard.

For instance, lazy kidneys may be to blame if you are nervous, have to get up nights, have dizzy spells, backache, leg cramps or swollen ankles.

Better be safe than sorry — try a 35-cent box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules — a real kidney diuretic and stimulant that may do you a lot of good.

They have been helping people for scores of years to correct their aches and pains when caused by lazy, sluggish kidneys.

But be sure and ask for and get Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules — the genuine — pure and original. Don't be an easy mark and accept a cheap substitute — Look for the GOLD MEDAL on the box — the sign of purity — 35 cents.

That Dictator Is Here Again

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

The case of Bruce Barton provides an interesting case study for those who profess to see the iron fingers of dictatorship already clutching at the vitals of American democracy. Barton was recently nominated by New York Republicans to run against Senator James M. Mead, ardent Roosevelt supporter, for the Senate.

SEN. JAMES M. MEAD

Author, advertising expert, member of Congress, Barton has long aspired to a seat in the United States Senate, an ambition which he manfully thrust aside a few weeks ago when the New York bosses said they wanted no part of him. He was in bad for running out at Philadelphia on Tom Dewey, the young man who swept the Presidential primaries and should have been nominated, according to all the rules of the game.

Just when the cause seemed hopeless, and Barton himself had given up, Wendell Willkie issued a thundering command to the G. O. P. State convention. He wanted Barton and no one else. The Dewey forces caved in, the opposition crumpled, and the Barton nomination went over with a whoop and a holler.

What's wrong with that? Nothing, except that it gives a faint odor and a hollow ring to the silly cry of dictatorship which the Republicans have been raising against the President. A couple of years ago when the Chief Executive expressed a preference for one candidate in the Georgia Senatorial primary as against another, the Republicans pretended to be shocked and horrified. The President was using Hitler's deadly weapon, the "purge," to kill off a political opponent.

THE HAND-PICKED CANDIDATE

Likewise when President Roosevelt indicated to the Chicago convention that he wanted Henry Wallace for a running-mate, that was dictatorship. When Willkie expressed a similar preference for Senator McNary at Philadelphia, that was leadership. There is nothing to be gained by laboring the point. The record tells the story.

Now Barton steps forth as the hand-picked candidate for Senator, the free gift of Wendell Willkie to the Republicans of New York State—whether they want him or not.

There is a deep vein of irony in Barton's aspiration to don a Senatorial toga. Ten years ago, after a brief period of living under the stalwart leadership of that other business genius and man of destiny, Mr. Hoover, Bruce thought it might be a good idea to abolish the Senate entirely. He went to Europe, became enthusiastic over the national unity achieved under strongman government, and wondered how the same results could be achieved in this country. He wrote:

"Must we abolish the Senate and have a dictatorship to do it? I sometimes think it would be worth the cost."

After bracing the stimulating atmosphere of President Roosevelt's leadership, Barton has now regained his love for democracy. His faith is revived, his fervor glowing. But democracy never survives on the faint-hearted loyalty of those who rush for cover at the first storm warnings. The love for free government is written deep within a man, too deep to be smothered by temporary reverses, or it isn't there at all.

The attraction of Willkie for Barton is the attraction of one super-salesman for another. Long before he entered Congress, Barton was a national figure known everywhere through his writings. His advertising firm poured out reams of gorgeous copy for the big industries of America. He wrote books also and by his own choice Barton became the chronicler of the mighty men who were bringing boundless prosperity to America.

MISREADING THE RECORD

This was in the gay twenties before the crash which followed the boom. Barton watched the Fancy Dans of Wall Street perform their financial wizardry and his heart overflowed with admiration. One of his books entitled "The Man Nobody Knows" was about Jesus whom he called "The greatest sales manager who ever lived." Although written in reverence, the book profoundly shocked many people whose ideas about the Founder of Christianity were vastly different.

If Barton were writing the book today, his ideal would doubtless be that of a tousled-haired youngster who later achieved greatness as a public utilities magnate, bought five farms in Indiana, and then rose to glory as the Republican nominee for President.

Barton was wrong when he failed to understand the false prosperity of the Nineteen Twenties. He was wrong in 1930 when his faith in democracy was shaken. He was wrong in failing to understand the meaning of the Roosevelt social program. Perhaps no man has so completely misunderstood the meaning of the times in which he lived.

Yet Wendell Willkie wants him in the Senate. They see too much alike on public problems to be divorced at this late date.

THE MIDDLE CLASS' PROBLEM—

By CARLISLE BARGERON

(Assigned by Republican National Committee)

"One reason I cannot take any stock in the Rooseveltian assumption of indispensability is that as a minister I have seen too many funerals."

—THE REV. VINCENT NORMAN PEALE.
Marble Collegiate Church, New York.

One of the most significant things about this World Wide Movement which is slowly strangling the great American Middle Class is that the Dictators abroad use the same language as the New Dealers. They all make common cause in shouting about "Reactionaries," "Economic Royalists," "Tories" and whatnot. One of Mussolini's hot-shots, for example, writes that the war "is an implacable definitive struggle between the Anglo-Saxon plutocracy and the anti-plutocratic revolution of the modern world." He speaks of the Anglo-Saxon millionaires and the "lords" of England.

Changed to apply to the domestic scene these might easily be the words of Ickie the Ick or Harry the Hop.

Just because Mr. Willkie revealed that Winston Churchill had pleaded with this country in 1937 to get its unemployed back to work and its industries operating again, the New Deal column next door, promptly denounced the latter as a "Tory."

In the next few weeks there will be a veritable New Deal blitzkrieg about Wall Street and Big Business and Mr. Willkie being their champion. Yet our New Deal neighbor has bragged about the earnings of Big Business under the New Deal's spending programs. It is a fact that the New Deal so far has been a perfect set-up for the wealthy. All in the world they have had to do is to sit back and clip the coupons from their Government bonds

Without intending offense to any group, it is an indisputable fact that there is about as much ignorance about the principles of government in "Wall Street" as there is among the migratory share croppers. Few people are less acquainted with the general goings-on in Washington than the "Industrialists."

A poll taken in Cincinnati recently revealed that 99½ per cent of the "industrial leaders" had failed to register; 10 per cent of the bankers had failed to do so.

Indeed, the struggle of the great American Middle Class has been made difficult these past few years by third and fourth generations of accumulated wealth trying to escape the Stork Club. These gentlemen of inherited wealth don't know what to do with themselves. With a feeling that they are being "socially conscious" they finance Leftist magazines and newspapers and books. The stuff they've paid for has done something to us, make no mistake about that.

We have in mind a department store scion, now angeling a notorious Leftist sheet. How much better he would be at "social consciousness" if he divided this money among his department store employes! Oh, but that would disturb the "labor" market. You see, labor is always a "commodity" in the eyes of the "socially conscious" boys.

There are "socially conscious" Bill Bullitt and Francis Biddle of the Philadelphia Bullitts, Biddles and Bullitts, enjoying a grand adventure in experimenting with the "masses." There is Jimmy Cromwell over in New Jersey. Jimmy gave the New Dealers about $100,000 in order that he could appear before the Senate Finance Committee on one ocassion to make his multi-millionaire wife think he was terribly smart. The Senators could scarcely disguise their amusement as he unfolded a fantastic tax scheme.

We aren't the envy kind. We don't envy these gentlemen their wealth. We simply wish they'd practice their "social consciousness" in the Stork Club or on the sands of Palm Beach, and let us Middle Class alone; not lock arms with Boss Hagues and Reds and Pinks to destroy us.

Oh, yes, we remember 1929, the bank failures, the breadlines. We have read about the French Revolution and the Civil War. We have read about what a hussy Ann Hathaway was as Mrs. Shakespeare and how Henry the Eighth quite devilishly had Anne Boleyn's head cut off.

WHAT WE OF THE AMERICAN MIDDLE CLASS NOW WANT TO KNOW IS: WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

HEARST 'BEAR FOUNTAIN' UNVEILED

Notables Attend Fete

WYNTOON, Cal., Oct. 10—Up in the forest of towering pine trees, where the McCloud river winds its turbulent course down from Mt. Shasta, stands the "Bear Fountain."

Made in Vienna by the gifted sculptress, Hanna Gaertner, and bought to California by William Randolph Hearst, it was unveiled several days ago.

Miss Gaertner herself was the sponsor for the event.

"DREAM COME TRUE"

With eyes sparkling and heart overflowing with happiness and pride, she exclaimed as the fountain was revealed to the assembled spectators:

"This is a wonderful moment for me. It is really a dream come true, as dreams do—sometimes."

For it is three years since Miss Gaertner was commissioned by Mr. Hearst to make for his country place—Wyntoon—in Siskiyou County—a replica of the interesting sculpture that had been her "thesis" when she received her degree at the Vienna Academy of Art.

The council of her native city of Vienna erected the fountain in the midst of one of the extensive municipal housing projects undertaken after the first World War.

ORIGIN OF NAME

"Bear Fountain" was the official designation of the authorities, but to the people of Vienna it became known quickly as the "Bear Fountain from the figures of a mother bear with a cub on her back that surmounted it.

The bears represent Ursa Major and Ursa Minor, the heavenly constellations called the Big Bear and the Little Bear—and more commonly known as the Big Dipper and the Little Dipper.

But this fact, and even the signs of the Zodiac carved on the twelve sides of the granite basin to carry out the celestial theme, although they were properly appreciated, did not outweigh the popular fancy to call it the "Bear Fountain."

COMPLETED IN '38

And so it was referred to at the unveiling by its creator and the guests of Mr. Hearst who witnessed the formal installation in its wonderful setting of forest and stream, with snow-capped Mount Shasta for the background.

Miss Gaertner, one of the thousands of native Austrians who suffered religious persecution at the hands of the Nazi invaders of her beloved Austria, and were forced to seek refuge in other lands, completed the "Bear Fountain" in 1938.

It was shipped to San Francisco, and from there hauled in trucks up to its present site.

Mr. Hearst invited Miss Gaertner to come to America to supervise erection of the fountain and sponsor its dedication.

EXPRESSES GRATITUDE

"I can n[illegible]ly express my gratitude to [illegible] Hearst for his help in my [illegible] to reach Amer[illegible]ly California," said Miss Gaertner at the unveiling.

"In Europe there is only destruction. It is no place for a sculptor, who naturally lives for the creation of something constructive, something that should last for eternity.

"For a while I thought I would never get here. Two years is a long time, especially under the conditions of our people in Austria.

"But now my great desire has been realized. I am grateful to be here in America, and to have at last had the opportunity to see my Bear Fountain in this beautiful environment."

In the gathering that witnessed the unveiling were Mr. Cary Grant, Countess Reventlow, Marion Davies, Mrs. Robert Hays Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Ford and Mr. W. R. Hearst.

WITHIN somewhat less than a month, the people of the United States will elect a President.

Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican candidate for the Presidency, will by that time have completed his campaign and rested his case with the people.

However, Mr. Willkie is already, and in fact has long been, sufficiently well known to the American people to be universally recognized as eminently qualified to be President of the United States.

He is a competent and constructive, resourceful and successful, honorable and reliable executive—and the country always and especially NOW needs a proven executive as President.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE WENDELL WILLKIE
Offers United States Its Best Chance for Peace

Mr. Willkie is an able manager of large business institutions, and the United States is the largest business institution in the world.

Mr. Willkie has a long record of successful achievement.

He has dependable and authoritative judgment.

These qualities are desirable and perhaps essential in the President of the United States.

Mr. Willkie possesses them indisputably, possesses them abundantly.

He is capable of being a good President, and he would BE a good President.

He SHOULD be the next President of the United States.

Seldom in the history of our country have we so sorely needed a President with the qualities and capacities which Wendell Willkie would bring to the office.

The United States is virtually on the brink of a serious and disastrous war—a situation which impulsive acts have brought about and which further impulsive acts might resolve into an undesired and unnecessary conflict.

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID in this campaign about the supposedly INDISPENSABLE man.

Perhaps our greatest and gravest danger is in continuing to put our trust and safety and peace in the hands of IMPULSIVE men who, though sincere and earnest, are disposed to be belligerent and bellicose in conducting our relations with other nations and hysterical and reckless with our American peace.

What is needed in the White House is not an indispensible man but a dependable man.

Mr. Willkie's cool, cautious executive wisdom and judgment are NEEDED.

His determination to preserve peace and KEEP OUT OF WAR is needed.

His confidence and FAITH in democratic processes and American ideals and institutions are needed everywhere, but ESPECIALLY at the executive helm of government.

Mr. Willkie offers the United States good government.

He offers the United States perpetuation of the American way of life.

He offers the United States its best and perhaps its ONLY chance for peace, and that failing, as God grant it never will, he offers the American people an adequacy of defense and preparedness for which the present Administration has glaringly proved its own complete and deplorable incapacity.

If peace, prosperity and a continuation of democracy are important to the American people, then the election of Wendell Willkie as President is indeed vital and INDISPENSABLE to them.

"NEWSPAPER reporters are depicted in films and current literature as debauched young men goading their flagging brains into moody action by the stimulus of alcohol," says a Santa Monica, Cal., newspaperman. "But the fact is a drunken reporter is about as much use to a newspaper as celluloid pants to a fireman" . . . Discussing the question as to why many fathers are heroes to their sons, but hardly any mothers heroines to their daughters, a feminine client writes: "Men can achieve boyishness without pretense. Women can be girlish only when they dress the part, then they are usually silly and kittenish and merely problems for their daughters."

"NOTHING is easier than fault-finding," said Robert Wise. No talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business." Mr. Wise is right but there should be a distinction fixed between fault-finding and constructive criticism . . . "To love and win is the best thing; to love and lose is the next best thing," said Thackeray. How many times did you love and lose, Lady? . . . "Let us endeavor to so live that when we come to die even the undertaker will be sorry," said Mark Twain.

"MY HUSBAND says if I am a good girl he is going to give me a typewriter for Christmas," writes a young matron. It would seem the husband of this client has the situation well in hand around his house. Good for him.

PORTRAYS GIRL OF THIRTEEN ON SCREEN
Norma Shearer with Leslie Howard in "Romeo and Juliet"

Perhaps this department should have awards for husbands; i. e. four-star husbands, three-star husbands, no-star husbands, etc. Of course, if we had four-star wife awards it might be dangerous as the wives would get too conceited.

NORMA SHEARER was more than 30 when she portrayed a character whose age, according to the author, was 13 years. What character was this? Why sir, it was Juliet, in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" . . . In that play, act one, scene three, Lady Capulet says: "On Lammas eve at night shall she (Juliet) be 14" . . . Marshal Rudolfo Graziani of Italy is a good soldier. He doesn't care much for the Nazis, though, as his family motto is: "An enemy forgiven is more dangerous than a thousand foes" . . . "I think you would be an ideal father," writes a young woman named Lillian, "but too young to be mine." Clever, those girls named Lillian. Think of getting two compliments in a 14-word sentence . . . "America's largest plate of ham and eggs is sold in Buffalo, N. Y.," writes a client. Sir, you are in error. America's largest plate of ham and eggs is sold in Kansas City, Mo. Milwaukee, Wis., is second. Buffalo, N. Y., is 18th on my ham and eggs records.

MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 10—An imposing number of gentlemen met me at my apartment soon after we reached New York City Tuesday morning. I hope they are going to accomplish something which will be of real assistance to the various semi-rural sections of the country. The people in these sections, while they can raise a certain amount of food for themselves, need other occupations to bring their incomes up to a decent level of existence.

I started late for a luncheon appointment uptown and encountered such a traffic block on Fifth avenue that I finally stepped out of the taxi and walked a little way, and took a taxi again where I thought the way looked clear.

The driver told me with some amusement that it was Mr. Willkie's parade blocking the street. By that time I was so late that I hardly listened to what he had to say. Seeing that I was really concerned about the time, he thought up the quickest possible way to reach my destination and took me down the ramp to 45th street and thus finally to my restaurant.

AFTER LUNCH I saw Miss Rosamond Chapin, who told me a most interesting story of her efforts to have opera produced in this country in the English language.

This seems to be a sensible idea, for if the same operas are produced in German, French and Italian, I cannot see why, if the translation is good, we should not have opera in English and bring it within the range of understanding and appreciation of a good many more people. You can not imagine a German audience without opera in German. That is one reason why they enjoy it so much, because it is part of their daily lives.

I carried home Miss Chapin's translation of "The Magic Flute" to read. I feel sure that there must be people in this country interested in her idea to promote American artists here, since they can no longer go abroad to gain their reputations and must, therefore, be recognized as artists by us.

I saw a good many people in Democratic headquarters and then went to see Miss Minna Citron's murals, which are being exhibited in the Art League building. They will be placed in the post-office in Newport, Tenn., and I think will be a notable addition.

By this time in the afternoon, I had more or less caught up with myself, and I arrived on time at the tea given by the Business and Professional Women. After spending an hour with them, I returned home to dress and dine and go with Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and Miss Thompson to see Mr. Maxwell Anderson's new play: "Journey to Jerusalem." The settings are beautiful and the whole play seems to me interesting and well worth seeing.

Dr. Dafoe

DR. DAFOE NOW EATS CANNED GOODS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—Dinner guests at the home of Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe in Callendar, Ont., are being made fully conscious of the new affluence which is the reward of the backwoods doctor who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world . . . In the days before the spotlight touched him, Dr. Dafoe's dinner table featured the excellent meat and fish with which that region abounds. But every resident of that region could feast upon that meat and fish, because it was there for the simple catching. Now, however, Dr. Dafoe serves those rarities which come only to the swanky of the backwoods men, the only persons who can afford the delivery . . . He serves genuine canned goods.

BEN HECHT went to Sardi's Monday night, after the press preview of his new picture, "Angel Over Broadway." There he saw Phil Baker, who asked: "Why is it you don't phone me?" . . . "Have you changed your telephone number?" said Hecht . . . "Yes, but that was six years ago," said Baker . . . "That's it, then," Hecht explained. "I refuse to wear eyeglasses; I can't read a phone directory without eyeglasses; I haven't read a directory in ten years; and so I can phone only those people whose numbers I remember."

SWIFTY MORGAN is telling the story of the circus lion tamer whose wife always beat him with a stove poker because of his drinking habits. He joined his companions at a tavern, and refused to drink until they taunted him into sipping some brandy. He sipped and sipped until he passed out . . . At 3 a. m. he awoke, found himself alone in the tavern, and decided it was too late to go home. He, therefore, went to the circus, entered his lion cage, told the animals: "Move over," and fell asleep . . . His wife discovered his absence grabbed her stove poker and trailed him until she discovered him in his cage sleeping beside his lions . . . She shouted until he awoke, then, brandishing the stove poker, she yelled: "Come on out o' there—you coward."

The Cuban government will sponsor the Cubamerica Music Corp. governing the rhumba orchestras which are sent to work in the States. Bobby Martyn has resigned from the Club Cuba to become head of that corporation . . . The producers of the anti-Nazi movie, "Escape," offered a five-week acting contract to Clifford Odets, to portray the role of a German newspaper man. Odets, remembering his acting days with the Group Theater, wanted to accept, but was dissuaded by John Garfield, who reminded him: "We leave the writing to you—you leave the acting to us."

THE GLAMOUR BOYS, Billy and Donald Livingston, have signed with the Seventh Regiment and will leave for Georgia next month to serve their three-year enlistment. "Don't pick it up," Jackie Gleason warned the high-priced screen star, it'll put you in the higher tax brackets" . . . Mayor LaGuardia induced Mitzi Somach—the secretary who quit him—to return to work for him by phoning her and saying: "Never mind what you think of me, but are you for Roosevelt?" Mitzi said "Yes, I am," and so Fiorello directed: "Then report for work at the LaGuardia-Norris Committee for Roosevelt in the morning."

SAMMY BYRD just returned from the South, where he visited Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, the Pulitzer Prize winner whose new play Byrd will produce. Byrd, Mrs. Rawlings and Thornton Wilder made a trip to Rollins College, where they sat at a table on the campus . . . One of Byrd's old classmates passed by and said: "Sam, I'm delighted to hear that you're going to do Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' play. Her book, 'The Yearling,' was wonderful." He then turned to Mrs. Rawlings, whom he didn't know, and asked: "You've read it, ma'am?" . . . "Yes, I've read it," Wilder assured the young man. "She read it the hard way—by writing it."

THE STORY OF THE CHICAGO HALFBACK who gazed at a Harvard player after being blocked out of a play in last year's Harvard-Chicago game and remarked: "I say, this is all rather futile, isn't it?"—wasn't a fable . . . Headcoach Dick Harlow confirms the yarn in a readable essay called "They Didn't Need Coaching," in a nickel magazine just out

COACH HARLOW ENDS THE STORY of the fabulous incident on home grounds of the midwest's mott "liberal" college with the comment: "Well, they haven't started saying that at Harvard yet!" . . . Richard the Lion-Hearted, engulfed in the sudden "purism" of the New England division of the Ivy League, comes no closer than that to a protest at the decline of the go-and-get-'em system

YET THE ENTIRE STORY—with the title "They Didn't Need Coaching" giving a hint—is a thesis aimed to prove that it's the players, not the plays (nor presumedly the coach) which makes a great football team . . . Dick comes right out and says: "You can have the plays . . . I'll take the players" . . . If the Michigan game is a rout — which it probably won't be — Mr. Harlow's answer is given in advance . . . The famous coach's modesty and fine character, however, is reflected in nearly every syllable.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Gypsy "Gyp" Rose Lee, the world famirmous strip-lady, was booked on the last plane out of New York to Boston, with a delegation headed by Rags Ragland (also a graduate of burlesque) formed to meet her at the airport . . . Gypsy is working for Buddy De Sylva in the title role of "du Barry was a Lady" in New York . . . By means of her first experience in the air, Miss Lee's schedule called for a view of today's matinee of "Panama Hattie" and a return to New York in time for her evening performance.

IF GYPSY COULD HAVE postponed her visit a day, she would have been a feature of Mickey Alpert's "68th Guest Star Night" at the Cocoanut Grove—(the quotation marks being Mickey's) . . . With the guest star idea spreading over Boston's Rialto like a tip on a loser, Maestro Alpert is bent on making tonight's session at the Cocoanut Grove the greatest of all time . . . There is plenty of material to work on, too . . .

EVERETT HOAGLAND'S MARVELLOUS orchestra is a threat already to the long-run hotel records in Boston . . . Those Boston College men who met Amon Carter, the free-handed promoter of the Cotton Bowl game last year, may be interested in knowing that Everett and Amon are brothers-in-law . . . Mr. Hoagland came up to leadership the "hard way" . . . He worked in a small swing unit a block away from Ben Pollock's band in Los Angeles, when a chap playing third clarinet for Maestro Pollock, and another playing first trombone, showed early promise . . . They have since turned out to be Benny Goodman and Glenn Miller . . .

THAT SMALL SWING UNIT had the honor, which wasn't very great then, of hiring Bing Crosby for $10 worth of Friday, Saturday and Sunday singing . . . And for $75 a week, the same Mr. Hoagland engaged the services of a girl trio known as Connie, Vet and Martha Boswell when he was musical director of a West Coast radio station . . . . The Hoagland band has clicked with a fast-growing Crossley this season.

SPEAKING OF CROSSLEYS—which is the unit of popularity in radio reckoning—a pair of Boston boys are really rating this season . . . One is Buddy Clark, who

Most of the Henie chorus was recruited from the Junior Leagues, the singing Mr. Clark makes known . . . As for Fred Allen, the other Bostonian . . . As a result of only two sessions on the air, insiders are marvelling that Fred has topped the whole field of comedy . . . Including Jack Benny.

GARFIELD GIVEN TONE ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10—"Gentle People," the gangster epic by Erwin Shaw which starred Franchot Tone and Sylvia Sidney on Broadway, has been purchased by Hal Wallis for Warner Brothers. The price is said to be $35,000. Jerry Wald and Dick MacAulay will do a complete rewriting job to meet censorial requirements. Funny to think of Franchot Tone as a gangster, yet he played as mean a heavy as you'll ever see in this drama. John Garfield gets the Tone role in the movie. Ann Sheridan will have the Sylvia Sidney role and Tom Mitchell a featured part. The plan is also to sign Alfred Basserman for one of the old men. William Keighley will direct and it goes into work after "Strawberry Blonde," in which Annie, Olivia De Havilland and James Cagney emote, is finished

I DON'T SUPPOSE there is any one on the M-G-M lot who has had more careful grooming than Ruth Hussey, considered by all the bosses as star material. Her biggest break comes now in "Dr. Ephriam McDowell," in which she plays opposite Spencer Tracy. She had the femme lead in "Flight Command" with Robert Taylor and has apparently graduated from the lesser roles to top spots. Spencer Tracy, who has been in New York on a vacation, is expected back next week, at which time he will have make-up tests on "Dr. McDowell"—one of the first physicians ever to perform an operation.

THE TALK of the town today is Charles Laughton, whose characterization as Tony, the Italian grape grower, in "They Knew What They Wanted," is a sensation. When Laughton was chosen, all of us said, "Why an English actor for such a part?" You'd never guess that Charlie is English when you see him, for he's got the Italian accent down so well he'd fool even his own mother. "They Knew What They Wanted" is, of course, adult entertainment and not what the children should see. Yet it is done so beautifully and with all the suggestive parts so carefully handled that credit should go to Garson Kanin for his direction. Carole Lombard does her best work in a long time and William Gargan should be in demand after his performance

Chocolate Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

An anniversary celebration of national culinary importance is taking place this month in the historic New England town of Dorchester, Mass. It was 175 years ago that young Dr. James Baker lent a helping hand to a penniless Irish immigrant, John Hannan, and set him up in business making chocolate in an old mill on the banks of the Neponset River.

Some years later Dr. Baker himself, fascinated with chocolate-making, closed his general store and started in business for himself, giving his own name to the chocolate he manufactured. He has long since gone to his reward, but his name remains famous and honored in every kitchen where goodies are made of chocolate: cakes, frostings, pies, puddings and candies.

"LA BELLE CHOCOLATIERE"

Something very important happened to this chocolate around 1860. The lovely subject of an old European romance was immortalized as the famous trade mark which has been used ever since. Prince Dietrichstein met and fell in love with a lovely young waitress named Anna Baltauf, and his wedding gift to her was her picture, painted by a noted Swiss artist—Jean Etienne Liotard. This painting, whose subject is the trade mark, hangs in the famous art gallery at Dresden.

As the years passed, this company added to its line of chocolates until today there are something like 200 different products—some of the most popular of which, for household use, are cocoa, unsweetened, sweetened, and semi-sweetened chocolate, and chocolate chips.

Following are some ancient chocolate recipes, just as they appeared in the old cook books, and some of our modern ones, which show marked contrast.

HOT CHOCOLATE

(Andrews, 1859)

A German recipe for preparing chocolate is as follows: To half a pound of chocolate allow 2 quartf of milk and the yelkm of fix eggf. The chocolate if to be grated, and when the milk boilf, poured into it; boil them together for ten minutef, then ftir in the yelkf of the eggf and difh it.

COCOA

(Widdifield New Cook Book, 1856)

Grind one tea-cupful of cocoa in a coffee-mill. Put it in a small bag made of very thin muslin, tie it close; put it in pot with three half pints of boiling water and one pint of boiling milk. Boil the whole for half an hour, then pour it into another pot and send it to the table. This will be found to suit invalids much better than chocolate, as it contains no butter.

"1765" CHOCOLATE CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 tsp. double-acting baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2-3 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
½ cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Beat eggs until thick and light and nearly white; add to creamed mixture and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased pans, 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Spread tops and sides with Chocolate Wonder Frosting. Write numbers on cake with butter icing. This cake may be baked in greased pan, 10x10x2 inches, in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 45 minutes, or until done.

THIS BEAUTIFUL anniversary "1765" cake, for which the recipe is given in Martha Lee's column, is spread on top and sides with Chocolate Wonder Frosting.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Ellis Robinson

I'M NOT a Catholic. I hold no particular brief for any code or creed. But I'm doffing my new fall bonnet today in enthusiastic approval of—and warm respect to—the University of San Francisco, whose Jesuit educators have made one of the most outstanding patriotic gestures in our current confusion.

No student, Catholic or Protestant, however high his previous record, may enter the University of San Francisco today without knowing the fundamental principles of Americanism . . . vowing allegiance if he is native born—or acknowledging their status if he is an alien.

And, however humiliating it may be to admit this fact, no other college or university has made such a ruling hitherto.

Here is that statement, the "Bill of Rights."

THE CREEDO OF THE UNIVERSITY OF SAN FRANCISCO

The University of San Francisco refuses to subscribe to the doctrine that "academic freedom" may be used as a pretext to teach systems which destroy all freedom. It proudly boasts that it has always taught and always will teach the following creed:

It believes in God.

It believes in the personal dignity of man.

It believes that man has certain natural rights which come from God and not from the State.

It therefore is opposed to all forms of dictatorship holding the philosophy that the "total man" (totalitarianism) belongs to the state.

It believes in the sanctity of the home, the basic unit of civilization.

It believes in the natural right of private property, but likewise that private property has its social obligations.

It believes that Labor has not only rights but obligations.

It believes that Capital has not only rights but obligations.

It is vigorously opposed to all forms of "racism," persecution or intolerance because of race.

It believes that liberty is a sacred thing, but that law, which regulates liberty, is a sacred obligation.

It believes in inculcating all the essential liberties of American democracy and takes open and frank issue with all brands of spurious "democracy."

It believes, briefly, in the teachings of Christ, who held that morality must regulate the personal, family, economic, political and international life of men if civilization is to endure.

There is the University of San Francisco's particular and unique "Bill of Rights".

IT IS NO LONGER ENOUGH TO BELIEVE IN AMERICA WITH OUR MINDS, AS A POLITICAL SCHEME. WE MUST BELIEVE IN IT AND SERVE IT WITH OUR HEARTS AND OUR SOULS, AS A DIVINE REVELATION, OR WE ARE LOST.

'Liquid Lather' for the Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S ALARMING . . . that tightened, drawn feeling that is apt to come to a really sensitive skin after a soap-and-water cleansing. And if it's something you would like to do without, for the sake of your complexion's softness and resistance to lines that increase with a dry condition . . . a new invention, a soapless "liquid lather" deserves your notice.

It has all the satisfying, deep-pore cleansing that comes with the use of water . . . nature's own best grime-dissolving agent . . . and yet the skin is left with its soft suppleness quite intact. Ingredients in this new aid actually contribute elasticity to the skin, instead of taking it away.

An opaque lotion is this "liquid lather," and when rubbed gently into your face it produces a rich, gleaming mass of bubbles. It is fragrant, of certain rare herbs which are used in it, and a very little bit of it goes a long, long way.

After cleansing you face with it in the usual soap-and-water way, rinse off the lather with warm water and finish off with a dash of cold.

A sensitive skin doesn't necessarily fall in a single "type" class . . . a very oily skin or a normal one can be just as thin and sensitive as the dry skin.

You'll discover that you may use this liquid lather so frequently that your skin will achieve a new freshness and clearness, because of its utter cleanliness. And utter cleanliness is a very hard thing to maintain these days . . . something anyone who seeks genuine complexion beauty shouldn't forget.

If you'd like to learn about this new "liquid lather" for sensitive skins, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days, except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"MR. AND MRS. REGINALD W. BIRD request the honor of your presence at the marriage of Mrs. Bird's daughter to Mr. Bird's son," is the gist of the invitations just issued by the socially prominent master and mistress of beautiful Waveney Farm, Framingham Center . . .

Sounds complicated . . . but it's easy to explain . . .

Mary Emery, Mrs. Bird's daughter by a former marriage, is to become the bride of John R. Bird, who is, of course, no blood relation, but happens to be her mother's stepson . . .

The wedding is taking place Oct. 29, at St. Mark's Church, Southboro, with a reception at Waveney Farm . . . Mrs. Edmund S. Kelley, Jr., the future bride's sister, will be matron of honor and only attendant, and the bridegroom will have his father as best man . . .

Mary, a popular member of the Vincent Club, is an accomplished horsewoman and tennis player . . . She made her debut in 1931 and the following year her mother was married to Mr. Bird . . . Her father was the late Manning Emery, Jr. . . .

Jack is a Harvard '29 graduate and brother of Mrs. William O. Clark of Framingham Center and Mrs. Wilbur P. Smith . . .

Ruth Aseltine Winchester Bride

THE NEW CHIMES, recently donated and installed in the tower of the Church of the Epiphany in Winchester, will ring out the strains of the wedding march for the first time this evening in honor of the marriage of Ruth Elizabeth Aseltine and Frederick William Watts, Jr. . . .

The chimes have been tolling the hour for several weeks but tonight's bride has the honor of being the first to hear the joyous pealing of the new bells in musical selections . . .

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Aseltine of Winchester, she is wearing a gown of white satin with a long train and a tulle veil attached to a small lace cap by clusters of orange blossoms . . . Her bouquet is of bouvardia, gardenias and lily of the valley . . .

Her sisters, Mrs. Norman Strickland of Waban and Mrs. Herbert Todd Wadsworth of Winchester, are matrons of honor, and Miss Mary Little Fuller of Winchester, the maid of honor . . . With their white taffeta hoop skirted gowns they are carrying bouquets of salmon roses and delphinium with the salmon shade predominating . . . Their headdresses are doll hats of the same flowers . . .

Bridesmaids Wear White Taffeta

THE BRIDESMAIDS, Mrs. G. Moulton Herrick of Cambridge, Ruth Dolben and Bette Sexton of Winchester and Constance Bumphrey of New York, are also wearing white taffeta gowns with blue the predominant color in their bouquets and headdresses.

Grenfell Rites Here Saturday

Funeral services for Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, one of the world's greatest humanitarians, will be held at Trinity Church in Boston Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Grenfell Ass'n, in announcing that the funeral of the 75 year-old Christian surgeon of the frozen north was to be held here said the place of burial had not yet been decided.

From family sources, however, it was learned that the body will likely be cremated and the ashes taken to Labador, the burial place of Lady Grenfell, who died two years ago.

One of the last acts of the English surgeon's lifetime of service in the icy wastes of Labrador and Greenland, was dictation of a letter to aid Charles J. Hubbard of Buzzards Bay in getting a job. Hubbard was a former volunteer in Labrador work.

British Air Force's Victories Featured on Keith Screen

Laughton Hit Also on Program

Keith-Memorial smash-hit program, starting today, brings its patrons RKO Radio's "They Knew What They Wanted," based on the Pulitzer prize play by the late Sidney Howard and co-starring Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton, and "The Great Profile," with the one and only John Barrymore repeating his attention-getting stage performance.

In addition to this sensational daily-double, Keith's this week offers in addition the latest March of Time film, "Britains' RAF," which pictures the little known details of one of the greatest battles in history.

It is an exclusive motion picture story of the Royal Air Force and its daily struggle with the invading air fleets of Nazi Germany.

The film, which has just arrived in this country from March of Time's camera staff in Britain, shows actual scenes of battle and many stirring and amazing exploits of British airmen which have been reported in the American press during recent weeks.

"Britain's R. A. F." pictures not only the defensive action of England's fighter planes — the Spitfires and Hurricanes — but also the offensive reprisal raids which Royal Air Force fliers have been carrying on against the Nazi invasion" bases established along the French and Belgium channel coasts, and even the attacks upon military objectives in Germany itself.

Britain's principal hope of victory, the March of Time film shows, rests upon her ability to keep her war industries going while beating back the Nazi invaders, and it is upon the RAF that this hope depends.

Movie Clock on Page 26

CHARLES LAUGHTON, who portrays the Italian fruit-grower in RKO Radio's "They Knew What They Wanted," is shown above dictating a love letter to Carole Lombard, with whom he is co-starred. Acting as secretary is William Gargan, who plays a featured role in the film based on the Pulitzer Prize play which opens today on Keith-Memorial screen.

'Brigham Young' On Twin Screens

"Brigham Young, Frontiersman," written for the screen by Louis Bromfield and starring Dean Jagger, Tyrone power, Linda Darnell, Brian Donlevy, and John Carradine, comes to the Scollay and Modern screen tomorrow. On the same bill with this Mormon saga will be "One Crowded Night," with Billy Seward, William Haade, Charles Lang and J. M. Kerrigan.

EXTRA MATINEE

An extra matinee performance of B. G. DeSylva's newest musical, "Panama Hattie," starring Ethel Merman, is being given at the Shubert Theater this afternoon.

CHARMAINE TO HEADLINE GLOBE'S NEW SHOW TOMORROW

BEAUTIFUL CHARMAINE who brings her charms to the Globe stage tomorrow as headliner of the new burlesque touring show.

Gala Program For Holiday

Cheri Charmaine, arrestingly tagged by her press agent "the sin-o-sure of all eyes," tops the Globe Theater's new show opening tomorrow.

There are 65 in the all-touring burlesquers company, with Connie Fanslau and Eleanor Sheridan heading the supporting players.

The comedy is in the competent hands of Charles Country, who is ably assisted by Freddie Lewis, Charles Naples, Floyd Hallucy, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson.

Indicating the important part vaudeville plays in these weekly divertissements, the management has secured as a headliner the sensational Five Hendriks, a singing, dancing and accordion playing ensemble direct from the World's Fair and featuring a $20,000 solo piano accordion, the world's smallest piano.

Of course there are the indispensable 30 Bernardolls, with a new routine of song-and-dance ensembles.

Other vaudeville features will include the Eight Singing Guardsmen with Marion Young and the tickle-toed Wynn and Wynette.

Film attractions will be "The Rains Came," with Myrna Loy and George Brent, and "The City of Chance."

There will be a holiday eve midnight show tomorrow night in addition to the regular "owl" midnight show Sunday night.

'Fads-Follies' For Gayety

Gayety burlesque opening tomorrow will be the "Fads and Follies" production with Irene Cornell, Dorothy Lawrence, Billie Lamont, Hazel Walker, Connie Mathews and the Kaye sisters in a rare array of skill and beauty set forth in dance specialties. In the line are several tiptop Gayety favorites and fancy steppers famous all over the burlesque world for their figures and their expertness in the fine art of teasing.

Billy Mack, one of burlesque's leading eccentric comedians, is another big Gayety favorite in "Fads and Follies." With him will be Eddie Innis, Harry Seymour, Earl Root, Sid Gold and Bob Goodman. Also on the bill are the Gayety Serenaders and Rogers and Lee, representing the cream of vaudeville. Chuck Gregory's dancing girls give the Gayety shows extra pep and youthful beauty. There are 30 of these cuties, some of whom one day will be spotlight stars.

This week's Friday midnight show will be especially attractive in dance and comic features on account of the holiday eve celebration.

Gayety film features for the next week are "Military Academy" and "Grand Ole Opry."

There are four burlesque shows daily, at noon, 3:15, 7 and 9:15.

Motherhood Epic at Trans-Lux

Startlg tomorrow the Tran-Lux Theater will present Pare Lorenz's newest picture, "Fight For Life," based on the book of the same title by Paul de Kruif. This film has already been hailed from coast to coast for its strikingly human dramatic and ever-moving say of American motherhood.

The story of life and death, with a young doctor as its central figure, Pare Lorenz's new film reveals striking authenticity of background and action. More than a year was spent in search, and production took place the actual locale of de Kruif book, the Chicago Maternity Center, with its doctors nurses, aunts and patients playing prominent roles. Principal members of the cast are Myron McCormick, Mrs Haynes, Will Geer and Dud Digges.

A young doctor, at the opening of the picture, loses a mother in childbirth. His searching mind seeks an answer to the great riddle of life and death, and he places himself in the hands of Chicago's most brilliant teachers, ministers of medical knowledge to the poor.

During the showing of "Fight For Life" children under 16 years of age will not be admitted into the theater.

Strong Men Do Not Change

By Hollis Starnes

The Cast of Characters in "Strong Men Do Not Change"

KAY McCARRAN, who has a chance to become a chorine, but whose father

STEVE, a former fighter, now running a gymnasium, frowns on the theater, especially chorus girls.

"You're still in the Dark Ages, darling! Chorus girls' fathers today are proud of them. So would you be, if you saw the competition I was up against landing this job. The crowd on that stage looked like a fight mob over at the Garden. Out of about 500 they were picking sixteen girls. And I was in the lucky group!"

Kay McCarran planted a kiss on her father's hard cheek as he whirled around in his desk chair to face her. It was between classes at Steve McCarran's successful New York gym, and he was in his working tights of black jersey, a fine figure of a man in his late 50s, with the physique of 35. Once, when he was known as Slug Steve, he was a contender for the middleweight championship. Not one ever reached his late 30s did he give up the ring; and then he was torn from finished. But Agnes Nolan had sworn she'd never marry a prizefighter, and she kept her word for fifteen years, until she saw his gym safely opened.

"You're a hard woman," he still liked to tell her. But he knew as well as she did that he'd been a far happier man since he had his home and his gym. The apple of his keen blue eye was his pretty daughter, the spirited, black-haired Kay. She was 19 now, and he'd spent half her life planning a future for her. Nothing he could think of, to date, was grand enough and it was a body blow when he learned that Kay was stage-struck. Now she was calmly announcing she'd gone after a chorus job.

"Does your mother know about this?" he demanded.

"Yes and she thought it was fine," said Kay, "and I hope you'll change your mind."

Steve jumped up and tramped around his little cubicle. "Strong men do not change their minds!" he told his daughter. "Your mother knows that well. I never thought the stage was any place for a girl and never will. I've said all this before."

"Hundreds of times!" sighed the girl. "Well, I shan't break my word to mother; I told her I'd give up this chance if you didn't approve."

STAR OF THE STORY

Steve had sat down again, somewhat mollified. Soon Kay was perching on his iron knees, smiling up at him sweetly. "Anyhow wouldn't you like to hear what went on," she cajoled him, "and how McCarran's girl, without a day's experience in a show, got picked above hundreds that have been on Broadway?

Steve shrugged. "If you're bound to tell me," he said. "I'll listen, Kay—but mind, you'll not get around me."

"Don't I know that!" said his daughter as if she really meant it. "Strong men don't change their minds. But you're the star of this story, dad. Only for your name and fame I'd never have got by this dance director."

"Only for me!" Steve let out a lionine roar. "What would some sissified dance director know about Steve McCarran?"

"Quite a bit," said Kay, "and he isn't sissified, either. If he is the joke's on you, darling, for he went through your classes."

"A dancing man in my place?"

Kay nodded. "His name is Evans and they call him Red. He's not so tall—just bantam height—looks about 25 and has a carrot top and nice blue eyes."

"When a man comes here," said Steve, "I don't bother with his name, nor the color of his hair or eyes. It's the body of the creature I look at—has he got flabby muscles and a paunch—"

"He hasn't," declared Kay quickly. "He's a most attractive lad—shows the work you did on him, Dad. Of course, his dancing may have helped, too," she added slyly.

"You say he looks like a reg'lar he-man? Then what in heaven's name is he doing in the dance business?"

"Maybe he likes the work," said Kay, and as her father groaned: "Maybe it's the only job he could get. Young men can't be choosey these days, Pop. Maybe he has a family to support."

"That's true enough," Steve granted. "If a man's got a wife and children——"

Kay seemed startled at this prospect. "Oh, I don't think he's married!" she said quickly. "I mean, he seems awfully young for that—and sort of unattached. But anyway, to get on with the story."

Steve looked above him at the big clock on his office wall. "Yes, on with it," he said, "for in five minutes I've got a banker's lunch hour class. I'm going to sweat hell out of them today."

OLD FRIENDS

Kay giggled. "Well when I got to the theater where they had this chorus call, I found the place jam packed. Then the eliminations started. After a while there were about a hundred of us left. I thought sure I'd be out when they asked those without Broadway experience to step before the footlights. There were just a handful besides myself. Mr. Evans sat out front with the producer. When he got to me he said, 'Any special training?'

"'I've won some dance contests,' I told him. Then he asked where I studied. 'I've never been to a regular dance studio in my life,' I said, 'but I've always been around my father's place.' So naturally he asked what was my father's place. You should have heard the yell go up when I told him."

"A yell," said Steve.

"Two yells," said Kay, "for the producer, who hadn't opened his mouth all morning, roared: 'Not Slug Steve!'

"The same,' I said. Well, this producer's sort of an old man, Dad"—and she named one of Broadway's best impresarios—but he made a leap down the aisle and shook hands with me. 'How's your Dad now?' he said. I told him you were fine. 'Tell him here's one fan that's never forgotten him,' he said. 'We'll never see his like again.'"

Steve blinked. "What do you say this feller's name is?" She told him. "Sure, I've seen that name in theater programs. Good shows, he puts on. So he remembered Slug Steve!"

"And how!" said Kay. "They held up the whole audition telling each other what a marvel you were—what form you had, what speed and grace——"

"Grace!" gasped Steve.

"Evans said you'd more grace in your movements than most dancers. 'A boxer of consummate grace' were his words."

"Consummate!" said Steve.

"So they decided," Kay went on, "since I was your daughter I should get a chance to try out whether I'd Broadway experience or not. After I showed them my dance routine, the promoter said, 'You're as fleet as your father.'"

"Fleet!" said Steve

"Then Evans said, 'Tell your dad if he ever gets tired of the gym business I'll give him a job any day training girls for me.'"

"He said that, did he?"

"Then they told me I was O. K. and to report at the theater next Monday for rehearsals. It was all so exciting, I forgot about your objections to the stage."

Steve shot a shrewd glance at her.

"But don't worry, I remembered in time, and ran down the block after Mr. Evans, He was on his way to grab a sandwich at the drugstore and asked me along. I tried to explain the situation and he saw your side of it—"

"He did," said Steve.

DAD SURRENDERS

"But he wanted to call you up—he thought maybe since I'd be among friends of yours in this show—"

"Friends," said Steve. "You say this fellow's a redheaded bantam weight? I sort of remember such a lad — he'd have made a fair fighter some day."

Steve let out a lionine roar. "What would some sissified dance director know about Steve McCarran

"I guess he couldn't wait that long, Dad. But he wants you to come to rehearsal sometime and watch him work."

"I never saw a rehearsal in a theater," Steve mused. "Must be nice work at that, telling a lot of pretty girls what to do, instead of slaving over a lot of old fogies with paunches. If it wasn't for the few young lads I'm training for the ring I'd be fit for the nut house."

"Well, don't forget you can get another job now!"

Steve sighed. "I'm too old to change now, but if I was younger . . . what was that big word they called me?"

"That's the one" He chuckled and suddenly looked at the clock. "Three minutes before I take on my fat men," he said. "Can you get this feller quick on the phone? Tell him Slug Steve wants to speak to him."

"I've won some dance contests."

Soon she heard the strong man's voice: "My daughter tells me you've offered her a job . . . Sure, Red, I'll have her on hand Monday for rehearsal!"

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

TALK WITH Billy Conn of Pittsburgh, who is in town to train at Johnny Buckley's Gym for his ten-round bout with Al McCoy of Dorchester at the Garden a week from tomorrow night, and he will convince you he can beat Joe Louis.

BILLY CONN

"Joe Louis is a great fighter," says Conn, "but he is not the superman some people think he is . . . I was in Miami last winter when Arturo Godoy went 15 rounds with Louis and received the vote of one of the three officials . . . I told Johnny Ray, my manager, to get me a bout with Louis as soon as possible as I was afraid somebody would beat the 'Brown Bomber' before I could get a crack at him.

"Look what happened to Henry Armstrong the other night . . . Other than some of us who come from Pittsburgh, few gave Fritzie Zivic a chance to beat Eddie Mead's champion . . . I always felt that any young welterweight who could punch and who would carry the fight to Armstrong could beat him . . . This is what Zivic did . . . He had Armstrong in a state of collapse when the gong sounded at the end of the fifteenth round.

"The same thing will happen when I meet Louis . . . I'll be the aggressor . . . Louis does not know how to punch while backing up and I'll beat him.

"I think I proved I can punch as well as box when I knocked out Bob Pastor in 13 rounds . . . I nailed Pastor with some terrific left hooks to the head and body . . . I would have beaten Joe Louis if he had been in Pastor's place that night."

Johnny Ray Directs Conn's Training

MANAGER JOHNNY RAY directs Conn's training . . . Johnny used to be a boxer himself, and knows all of the fine points of the ring game . . . Ray believes Conn is too good a boxer and hits too hard for any fighter in the world.

"I think Conn will keep winning until he has beaten Joe Louis," said Ray . . . "I realize that in Al McCoy my protege will be opposed by an experienced, hard hitting fighter . . . I could have picked an easier opponent for Conn for his Boston debut, but I did not wish to do so as I feel Billy can beat the best of them . . . I believe that by keeping Conn in action against the top flight men of his weight he will have a better chance of winning when he takes on Louis next June."

Conn likes to be on the scene of a contest at least a week ahead of time . . . This gives him an opportunity to train properly . . . The young Pittsburgh Irishman should be at his fistic peak when he enters the ring against McCoy at Rip Valenti's Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden a week from tomorrow night.

This tussle will mark the return of big time boxing to Boston . . . It is expected that the Garden will be jammed when Conn and McCoy cut loose in their battle of punches.

Pennock Expected to Develop Sox Pitchers

HERB PENNOCK was named to succeed Billy Evans as head of the Red Sox farm system in the hope he will develop needed pitching power . . . The Red Sox rather than Detroit would have represented the American League in the World's Series against the Reds this fall if the club had a pitcher of the ability of Buck Newsom or Paul Derringer.

The passing of Evans out of the Red Sox picture also indicated that Eddie Collins is as powerful as ever with Tom Yawkey . . . When Evans first joined the Sox, it was hinted he would eventually succeed Collins as General Manager . . . The failure of Evans to develop the necessary rookie pitching strength caused Yawkey to replace him with Pennock . . . The latter was one of the greatest southpaws in the American League . . . He is a keen student of baseball, and will

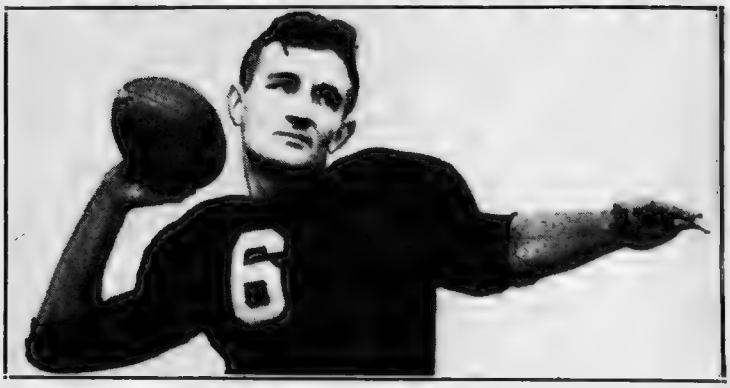
MICHIGAN INVINCIBILITY SCOFFED AT BY HARVARD



BACK OF YEAR—Point-a-minute Tommy Harmon of Michigan, who will kick, pass and run against Harvard in Stadium, Saturday. Harmon is best Michigan back to appear here since Johnny Maultbetsch. His scoring spree against California two weeks ago was best individual performances by any back since Red Grange ran wild for Illinois in 1924. Last Saturday Harmon scored all three Michigan touchdowns against strong Michigan State eleven.

A husky band of Wolverine football players, headed by Tom Harmon, the greatest college back in the game, will arrive at 10:40 tomorrow a. m. at the South Station and immediately leave for a short drill at the Stadium.

All indications point to a large crowd for the seventh game between the two rivals. The last time that the two teams met in Cambridge was in 1930, when the Stadium was packed to capacity.

Harvard coaches refuse to say that Harvard can not stop Michigan, but they don't say that Harvard will win. How good is the invading Michigan team? Michigan walloped California, 41-0, and Michigan State, 21-14. It was only last week that the same California team romped over the Gaels of St Mary's.

HARMON'S LAST YEAR

Harvard is trying to figure out some way the Crimson can upset Michigan downed Yale, 27-7, last year. A few years ago a powerhouse Princeton team came to Cambridge expecting an easy day, but when the game totals were added up the score was tied.

That all reads very well, but it so happens that Michigan has Tom Harmon this year who is making his final bid for a niche in football's ranks of immortality. He is called "greater than Grange" and the best back ever to wear the moleskins.

Floyd Stahl, one of the Harvard scouts at the Michigan game last week, met Coach Crisler and asked what he would do if Harmon was hurt the week before the Harvard game. Crisler quickly said.

"Don't worry, we keep Harmon in glass cage all week long."

HARLOW PLOTS OFFENSE

There are two good reasons why the Harvard-Michigan game will not be a rout. The first is that Harlow has been working all fall on a new offensive. Mum's the word on the new set of tricks, but even the Harvard players admit that Michigan is going to see something revolutionary in football.

The second reason why the Wolverines probably will not blast Harvard out of the Stadium is that Michigan has a team well qualified to cop the Big Ten title and Crisler will not take any chances on having his key men injured by being kept in the game beyond the point of necessity.

Harvard has a better team than last year and should be capable of Local Lads To Aid Owls Against B. C.

When Temple's football Owls appear at Fenway Park Saturday to play Boston College, Salem's Al "Jury" Juralewicz will be showing locally for the last time as a collegian.

The fact that Juralewicz is an important member of the Philadelphia, east is old news. The local sports associate Juralewicz and Temple just as they do "swing" with "sway". But the Salem lad isn't the only Massachusetts boy who'll come to town with the Temples.

WATSON BREAKS LEG

Henry Zajowski from Lynn will probably start at tackle now that the veteran Bill Watson has been floored for the season by the broken leg he sustained in Temple's final scrimmage yesterday in Philly. John Bochynski, another Owl lineman, also spends his vacations in Lynn. Juralewicz, Zajowski and Bochynski often faced many of the present Eagles in high school clashes.

Though hardly local boys, Jimmy Powers, plenty of halfback, and Stanley Batinski, rock ribbed guard, played their high school football in Greenfield, located in the Berkshires. Powers, a wingback who has been afflicted with one injury after another during his collegiate career, could easily be the star of Saturday's encounter.

A big lad with a world of speed, Powers is remembered by Eagle rooters as the young fellow who cast consternation into the ranks

Rival Bands Duel In Stadium

The Harvard and Michigan bands will put on one of the most colorful displays Saturday ever staged on a college gridiron. The Wolverine band, 150 strong, will come East for the game. The invader's tooters were selected as the All-American band last year and the Crimson band is a close second. An added attraction will be a card display put on by the Harvard cheering section. It will be the first time in the East that any college has performed the card tricks spelling out team slogans, and other razzle-dazzle.

Hearst's Marksmanship Meet Stimulates School Interest

Interest in marksmanship among young people in schools, both public and private, will be stimulated throughout the William Randolph Hearst Citizen Marksmanship Competition to be conducted in New England by the Boston American-Record.

The William Randolph Hearst Junior Rifle Competition will be likewise sponsored by the American-Record and will enjoy the cooperation of the National Rifle Ass'n.

The junior competition will be operated in much the same manner as the present rifle competition among R. O. T. C. and military schools.

WATCH FOR DATES

The matches will be undertaken by the American-Record and entries in the matches will be received by these newspapers. Dates and conditions of the matches will be announced shortly.

The National Rifle Ass'n will provide each school or junior team entered in the competition a set of registered targets.

The teams will fire for record on these targets within a specified period and immediately return these targets to the National Rifle Ass'n for scoring.

The American-Record will be immediately notified by the National Rifle Association of the score fired by each team as soon as these targets have been received and scored.

STUDENTS GLAD TO SHOOT

Already there are many rifle teams composed of public and private school students under the sponsorship of the schools, or of the Public School systems. The Boston school system conducts an extensive system with expert drillmasters in charge. All of these students will, from indications, be only too glad to participate in the competition for the Hearst trophies.

Additional news of vital importance to participants in the William Randolph Hearst Citizen Marksmanship Competition will be printed in the daily columns of the American-Record daily.

All shooting-minded citizens in New England are urged to keep in constant touch with these columns and to send in their entries as soon as possible. A blank appears here today.

Harvard Plots To Stop Harmon

holding the invaders to a common sense score. Harmon's specialty is running the ends, and that is Harvard's strongest department.

NAMES BACKS TODAY

Loren MacKinney at left end rates with the best in recent Harvard history. His defensive play has been sparkling for two years. Joe Kaufman will be on the other flank. He is fast, an exceptionally good man covering punts and is just about the best pass receiver on the squad.

Late last night, Coach Harlow announced that his starting line against Michigan would have Elser and Gardiner in the tackle slots; Peabody and Lowry at guards and Dietz at center.

Harlow will not announce his starting backfield quartet till late today. But the chances are that Heiden, Spreyer, Lee, and Waldstein will be in there at the opening whistle.

SPREYER BEST BACK

Spreyer will direct the team, do the passing and kicking. Charley has shed some poundage this year and appears to be a lot faster. Injuries early this fall have retarded his development, but right now is far and away the best back at Harvard. He is cool and at his best when the chips are down.

Mort Waldstein will be in the bucking back berth. He didn't see action in the Amherst game because he had a slight bump, but another reason may be that Harlow did not want the Michigan scouts to get a peek at his prize soph.

America can be proud of American brewing! Thousands of people who used to buy imported beer find that Trommer's White Label tastes even better. Why shouldn't it? Trommer's not only uses the choicest hops and true barley-malt (no other grain added!)—but has employed the same Old-World brewing formula for nearly 50 years.

EAGLES' PUNTERS NEAR TOP

SEATTLE, Oct. 10 (AP) — Cornell's 1940 gridiron debut last week was just as impressive on the yardstick as it was on the yard lines.

The American football statistical bureau, starting its annual compilation of the nation's collegiate football performances, today pegged the Ithacans as the country's top passing team and ranked them second on total offense—gains from rushing and passing—on the basis of the 34-0 thumping of Colgate.

Drake University, mainly through swamping Montana State 56-0 in its opener, has a two-game average of 485 yards per game to lead in total offense. Cornell is second with 426, followed by Brown, 425 in two games; Mississippi, with 421.7 in three games, and Rice, 420 in one game. Creighton, Iowa, Illinois and Arizona follow.

CREIGHTON LEADS RUSHING

Creighton has the highest rushing average per game, 394 yards, followed by Brown, 380.5; Lafayette, conqueror of N. Y. U., 370; Iowa, 368, and Mississippi State, 333.5. Michigan, Wake Forest, Mississippi, Northwestern and Tennessee, playing tougher opposition than some of the first five, still push their way into the top ten Wake Forest led this classification in 1939.

Cornell's 276 yards from 11 completions ranks the Big Red first as a passing team.

Illinois, with a 257 yard average, is second; Indiana third with 234; Missouri fourth with 205 and Texas A. & M., fifth with 183. Texas, Baylor, Rice, Arizona and Oklahoma pad out the list with strong representation.

Mississippi State, which plays Auburn this week, is the best defensive team to date, holding the opposition to 14.5 yards per game from both rushing and passing. Georgia is second with 26.5, Navy third with 39.5, Iowa fourth with 42 and Colorado State fifth with 65. Tennessee, Illinois, Kansas, Southern Methodist and Fordham round out the first ten.

GEORGIA BEST IN LINE

Sturdiest line performance so far is that of Georgia. In games against Oglethorpe and South Carolina the Georgia forwards have allowed but four yards to the enemy, an average of two yards per game.

Mississippi State has yielded five yards in games with Florida and Southwestern for a 2.5 average. Arizona, Brown, Colorado State Texas Christian, Tennessee, Navy, Iowa and Clemson follow in order

The top ten punting teams are Texas Mines, Kentucky, Tulsa, Stanford, Georgia, Texas A & M., North Carolina, Clemson, Boston College and Richmond.

Athens of America!

By the Associated Press

One of the brightest stars on one of North Carolina's big football teams had to take a history test to be eligible the next Saturday . . . The Prof. asked him one simple question, "what is the capital of North Carolina?" . . . "Pikeville," replied the guy . . . "Well," said the academic, "if you had answered correctly you would have had 100 . . . since Pikeville is only 15 miles from Raleigh, I will give you 85 and pass you" . . . (Two days later the fellow toted the mail, as usual.)

Demand of Hub Fans Brought Conn Here

Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh Irishman who is light-heavyweight champion of the world and shortly hopes to annex the heavyweight crown, will fight Al McCoy at the Boston Garden a week from Friday night by popular demand; at the request of Boston fans.

Conn revealed today that the bulk of his fan mail comes from this vicinity, from Old Sod admirers in the Greater Boston district.

"Most of the letters I got asked that I come to Boston to fight," said Conn today. "I've probably had close to a hundred requests to fight in Boston and I've always wanted to do it."

MANY CONN FANS IN HUB

Furthermore Conn is anxious to give one of his finest showings here when he squares off against McCoy. On this occasion it is a safe bet that the invader from the Smoky City will have as big and as loud a cheering section as the local boy, McCoy.

Conn wants to k. o. McCoy, the French-Canadian youth who started out like a whirlwind as a middleweight and light-heavyweight but has found the going in the top division a bit turbulent. Recently McCoy fought Melio Bettina, former light-heavyweight champ, and beat him.

BEST FIGHTS WITH BETTINA

Two of Conn's toughest scraps were with the same Bettina. Conn took the 175-pound crown from him and then was extended to the limit to hang on to it. Off their showings against Bettina, McCoy should give Conn another tough fight.

Belting Billy, however, has grown bigger and stronger and developed a stuffer sock since the days when he was mixing with Melio Bettina. He's now a definite k. o. threat as he proved against Bob Pastor. Conn kayoed Pastor in round 13. Shortly before it took Joe Louis himself 11 rounds to drop the same stubborn Pastor.

'WHERE'S BLONDIE?'—Billy Conn, world light heavyweight champion, buys Boston Evening American upon his arrival in Boston. "Can't miss my favorite comic strip 'Blondie,'" he chirps. Conn will fight Al McCoy over 10-round route at Garden week from tomorrow.

Hub Boys Aid Against Eagles

of the 1938 Boston College team when he scored a touchdown on a pass completion in the dying moments of the Eagle-Owl clash. The six-point effort, followed by a conversion, gave Temple that memorable 26-26 knot

MONTY'S HIGH SCHOOL RIVAL

Juralewicz hardly needs an introduction. He was a standout for three years at Salem High School. He and Montgomery waged a personal duel when Salem and Brockton High School went four sensational periods to a 20-20 draw in Brockton four years ago. For the past two seasons he has been a definite thorn in the side of Boston College. Saturday he'll have to be watched every minute that he operates from the triple-threat tailback slot.

Zajowski, a junior at the Philadelphia school, is an ex-Boston College man. Henry was an end with the 1937 Eagles. His teammates then were the present seniors on the Eagle squad, Wilk, Alex Lukachik and Gene Goodreault on the premises. Zajowski couldn't make the grade as a first-string wing with the yearlings. He did see lots of service, though, in a substitute role. He left school at midyear and turned up at Temple next year.

Thorpe Asks Field Goal Revival

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10 (AP)—Jim Thorpe, the old Carlisle all-American gridder, wants to see "more field goal kicking in present-day football."

He told a luncheon club yesterday:

"Last year I appealed to Coach Babe Horrell of the U. C. L. A. to allow me to teach his kickers. He consented and they just missed being picked for the Rose Bowl game. I believe with a field goal kicker they would have been the West Coast selection."

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10 (AP)—Memo to Jim Thorpe:

Don't mention field goals to Coach Babe Horrell this season.

The U. C. L. A. Bruins lost their last two starts, to Southern Methodist and Santa Clara, 9-8. Field goals provided the winning points in each case.

SOX FARM BOWS OUT TO NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10 (AP)—The power house Newark Bears were back on top of the minor baseball world today, defeating the Louisville Colonels of the American Association four games to two in the 1940 Little World Series.

Beaten at the pressure last night by Ike Boone's homer, Louisville roared into the Colonels' first inning today behind Steve Peek, pitching ace and reliever of the season, to take seven runs.

Peek, however, failed to last his opponents' attack and Newark's Wayne Osborne and Ernest Lee Jones held the Colonels to a single run for the next nine innings. Meanwhile the Bears were getting to Peek for a total of six runs and victory.

Joe Berry, who pitched a one-hit game, was the hero of the Bears' victory in 17 games. Joe Hoag, pilot, credited Berry with the game, saying: "Joe is up to the form New York Yankees paid $7,500 for in August as will six of his teammates."

Two others also will be missing from the Newark scene in 1941—the slugging third baseman Henry Majeski, who is the property of the Boston Reds and second baseman Alex Kampouris, who set a new season record of four home runs. He was bought by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It was Newark's first triumph in the classic pennant victories being scored in 1902 and 1925 by teams acknowledged as the greatest in the Bears' history. The International now has won 10 series to the Association's 7.

Although the 1940 Bears lacked the class of the two former championship outfits, they were a hustling bunch and Manager Johnny Neun first sacker for the '32 team, described them as "the greatest bunch of power hitters I've ever seen on a minor league team."

The latter forced the early pace, shipped through on the rail entering the stretch to a safe lead but was unable to deny the winner's final challenge. French Trap away slowly, worked her way up on the rail and closed stoutly. Bright Beam took a short lead, hel daway to the stretch then bore out and had no chance thereafter. Jackintheboxy well placed throughout, was unable to better his position in the drive. Good Omen had brief speed as did On Quest. The rest were never factors. Whisper refused to break.

TENNESSEE, TULANE BIG GAME FAVORITES

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (INS)—Bearing in mind what little F. & M. did to Dartmouth last week, this operator feels tempted to pick Tennessee over Chattanooga, Michigan over Harvard, Alabama over Howard—and call it a day.

However, duty and a carload of advance dope from coaches and scouts tempts us to take a stab at some of the tough ones.

Therefore, we are going right out on a limb to take Northwestern against Ohio State in one of the many feature games listed for Saturday. Superior speed in the backfield is the main reason for picking the Wildcats.

A thoroughly aroused powerhouse outfit from Tulane is coming North bent on demolishing Fordham. We have been advised to take a flyer on the Greenies, but we'll have to see them beat this Fordham team before we believe it.

B. C. SHOULD WIN

Out on the coast Santa Clara and Stanford figure closer than the bristles on a hairbrush, but we are going to give the former the nod because beating Stanford has become something of a Santa Clara habit.

Georgia and Mississippi should put on one of the top thrillers of the day down South, and we are going to string with Ole Miss despite injuries to three key men.

Here in the East the same Boston College that was good enough to crush Tulane should win handily from Temple. Manhattan should nose out Boston University and we give Colgate an edge over Brown.

We like Holy Cross over Carnegie in a tight one and Columbia by a shade over Dartmouth which will be all steamed up over that F. & M. beating.

Cornell's great team of seniors probably will go easy on Army, and Michigan probably will be kind enough to keep Tommy Harmon on the bench most of the time against Harvard. S. M. U. will have its hands full with Pitt but should pass its way to victory.

We also like Duquesne over South Carolina, Villanova over Florida, Syracuse by a shade over N. Y. U., Penn easily over Yale, Penn State over West Virginia and Princeton to nose out Navy.

IRISH PICKED TO WIN

We probably could do just as well on some of the Western games by the hatpin route. However, the dope says Nebraska, playing at home, should get a slight shade over Indiana.

Notre Dame should take Georgia Tech after a tough struggle. Southern California should get going against Illinois. Iowa figures over Wisconsin, but this may be one of the upsets of the day.

We like Purdue over Michigan State, Missouri over Kansas State, Marquette over Iowa State, Kansas over Drake and Creighton over Tulsa, but would not be surprised if these games should go contrary to our selections.

In the Southwest we are going to stick with Baylor to beat Arkansas, Rice to take Louisiana State and Texas to trim Oklahoma. And maybe we'll be stuck with all three.

For the Far West we are forced to string along with the great Texas Aggies squad to down U. C. L. A., Utah to beat Arizona, Brigham Young to wallop Wyoming, Colorado to defeat Utah State and Texas Tech to take Montana.

We like Denver's chances against Colorado Aggies, and we are going to take a flyer on California to beat Washington State and Oregon to upset the Washington apple cart

CLEMSO NTO WIN

Almost anything can happen down South, but one of the things we don't expect to see is a North Carolina victory over Texas Christian. It could happen, of course, but those Texans come from a very tough league and they all can pass as well as run.

Virginia should have little trouble beating Maryland; Centenary figures over St. Louis; Auburn gets the nod over Mississippi State, and we are going to take a flier on Kentucky over Vanderbilt. And in one of the best scraps of the day we are going to take a stab on Clemson to trim that surprisingly fine Wake Forest team.

Beckles Shows At Quincy

Northwestern-Ohio State Game Of Vital Interest to Cornell

CHICAGO, Oct. 10 (AP)—A package of dynamite is going to explode in Dyche Stadium Saturday, and the repercussions may sound ominous in Minneapolis and Ithaca, N. Y.

Ohio State's powerful Buckeyes will meet the surprising Northwestern Wildcats before an anticipated sell-out crowd of 45,000 in a battle which ranks as one of the day's naturals.

The skirmish, 19th in a series which has seen Ohio State win 12 games and tie one, will bring together two elevens which apparently "have it" this season, both offensively and defensively.

More than that, however, the battle should provide a tipoff on the national championship chances of not only the teams involved but also of Minnesota's Gophers and the Big Red machine of Cornell.

CORNELL ON OCT. 26

Ohio State, victorious over Pittsburgh and Purdue, will be favored over a Wildcat team which routed Syracuse, 40 to 0.

Victory for Ohio State could prove a big stride toward national ranking, what with Minnesota on the Buckeye schedule a week from Saturday and a battle coming Oct. 26 with Cornell, eastern intercollegiate champions who ranked fourth in the final national Associated Press poll in 1939.

An Ohio State victory Saturday and then a win over Minnesota, which has an open date this week end, could set the stage for a great battle between the Western Conference champions and Cornell, which easily beat Colgate and should win handily over Army and Syracuse in its next two starts. Army barely defeated Williams Saturday while Syracuse didn't show much against Northwestern.

Aside from the national ranking angle which may embellish the battle, Ohio State has good reason for wanting to whip Cornell this season.

TROUBLE AT HOME

The Big Red eleven blasted a hole in the Buckeye record midway in the 1939 campaign, taking a 23 to 14 decision from the Bucks after Ohio State had whipped Missouri, Northwestern and Minnesota in order.

But it's a cinch the O. S. U. coach, Francis Schmidt, isn't thinking of Cornell—yet. He has Northwestern to worry about, then Minnesota.

In a season which promises one of the toughest title fights in Big Ten history, no one realizes better than Schmidt that it's better to clean up things in your own back yard before looking for trouble elsewhere.

A few minutes later Dorchester blocked a punt and scored. South Boston came back strong and belted their rivals all over the park to snatch a 32 to 7 victory.

Big Cars Race at Topsfield

The third big car auto race of the season at the Topsfield Fair Grounds will be held on Columbus Day Oct. 12. Entries have been received from leading drivers from New England and New York and more than 25 drivers will compete in these races.

Among this star studded field of drivers is Eddie "Cyclone" Casterline of Malden one of the leaders in point standing for the New England Championship. Eddie will be out to capture this race as a win would put him well on the road to the championship, but he will find some stiff competition in such drivers as Joe Sostillio of Newton, George Baxter of Danbury, Conn. D. Vartanian of Lawrence, Bumpy Bumpus of Brockton, and Dizzy Vance of West Roxbury.

Entries have also been received from such well known drivers as Ernie Bradden of Andover, Frank Harris of Malden, Charlie Morse of Ayer, and John Eddy of Thompson, Conn.

The card of races will consist of seven events with the time trials starting at 12:30 and the first race at 2:30.

St. Marys Play At Watertown Under Lights

By SAM BROGNA

With the Boston schools idle today, the lone schoolboy grid attraction will be tonight at Victory Field, Watertown, where St. Mary's of Waltham meets St. Mary's of Brookline in a Catholic League tussle to be played under the lamps.

Although the Waltham saints already have played three encounters, tonight's engagement will be their first in league competition. The game also is listed as a charity affair with the proceeds to be turned over to the Watertown Christmas Fund.

The Waltham outfit has yet to face defeat, having won two and tieing one. Latest victim was Central Catholic High of Lawrence, played on the Sabbath last week.

These saints also will introduce two of the fastest backs seen in Catholic circles in the persons of Capt. Bill Vellante and Hugh McShane. "Mac" is the leading scorer of the team. Against Central he intercepted a pass and ran well over 85 yards for a touchdown.

The Cambridge Latin vs Worcester Commerce game, scheduled to be played on the latter's home grounds Saturday afternoon, has been shifted to Saturday night. This change enables fans to take in the Holy Cross-Carnegie Tech clash and then the schoolboy contest at night.

Coach Adam Elcewicz's Cantabrigians will be out for their second straight win after a disastrous start in which they dropped their first three games. Last week, they edged Lawrence 13 to 12. Prior to this, they were forced to take plenty of bumps and knocks.

Peabody which is one of the few undefeated, untied and unscored upon elevens left, topped the Cantabs 6 to 0 in their opener, LaSalle Academy took them for two touchdowns the following week, and Somerville handed them their third straight 6 to 0 seven days later.

Only in the Lawrence game were they able to push across a score.

Little St. Columbkille of Brighton makes its third appearance of the season tomorrow against the Angel Guardian of Jamaica Plain.

With only a grid squad of about 18, St. Columbkille, which some day hopes to become a regular member of the Catholic League, has been finding the going a little hard, but under tutelage of William "Red" Hazel, former Holy Cross center and all-scholastic in high school, the happy little band has been showing rapid strides.

This is the second season that St. Columbkille has had a football team in the history of the school. They opened this campaign with St. Mary's of Waltham, losing 20 to 13. Malden Catholic seconds were next, and they had to be satisfied with the short end of a 7 to 6 score.

Capt. Tom Finnegan, quarterback, Frank McCormick and Tom Walsh at halfbacks and Jerry Lehman at full forms a neat backfield. Each player is capable of doing either the passing, kicking, running or blocking.

Only two North Shore games will be played in the morning Columbus Day . . . Salem plays host to Marblehead on Bertram Field and Revere takes on Boston College High . . . Both games start at 10:15 a. m.

South Boston's Harry "Hurricane" McDonough is heading for an all-scholastic berth . . . A prize of $100.00 will be awarded the person whose entries contain all selections correct. If more than one person submits perfect solutions $100.00 will be awarded the tieing contestant whose average score tabulations most nearly match the actual average scores of the games. If no perfect list of selections is entered, $50.00 will be awarded to the contestant having the nearest number of selections correct, and should two or more contestants tie for this prize the tieing contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the award. A prize of $25.00 will be awarded the person submitting the second largest number of correct selections and should two or more contestants tie for this prize tieing contestants submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the prize. Twenty-five awards of $1.00 each will be given the twenty-five contestants whose entries contain in succession, the next largest number of correct selections and whose average scores most nearly match the actual average scores of the games.

Winners of each week's contest will be announced on the Saturday following the games. The decisions of the judges in all cases shall be final.

Mail all entries to the Record-American Football Contest Editor, P. O. Box 1987, Boston, Mass. Art Ross Arranges Bruins' Passport

Manager Arthur H. Ross and Coach Cooney Weiland of the Bruins hockey team will leave tonight for Toronto t to make arrangements with the Canadian government for Bruinsns players to cross the border.

Ross will meet the officials of the Canadian government tomorrow. At that time all the Bruins players' passport and visas will be checked and Ross will post bonds on behalf of the National Hockey League, which will guarantee the return of all these players to Canada in six months.

It will take two days to make final arrangements for the players to come into the United States, and Saturday night the full squad of Bruins, regulars and amateurs, will leave Toronto for Hershey.

PRACTICE STARTS MONDAY

The squad arrives in Hershey on Sunday morning, where Trainer Win Green and his assistants, Walter Randall and Hammy Moore, will have all the Bruins equipment ready.

The players will get their equipment fitted on Sunday and start practice at Hershey on Monday. They face three exhibition games with the Hershey Bears before they open the National Hockey League schedule on November 2 at Montreal against Les Canadiens.

Ross, on the eve of the opening of the Bruins pre-season practice, is most optimistic as regards the coming season, and particularly is he enthusiastic about the strength of the Bruins squad. There are many things to be settled at the Hershey camp.

KITCHENER KIDS SET

It is assumed that the Kitchener Kids, Bobby Bauer, Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt, will play together as a line again. The make-up of the second and third lines, though, is something for the Hershey practice to straighten out.

Ross will not commit himself on his plans for Flash Hollett or Red Hamill, both of whom a year ago played both on defense and in the forward line. Terry Reardon, who played so brilliantly in the final game of the Rangers series a year ago, will make a great bid for a Bruins regular position.

Hugh Little and Gordon Bruce will be lively contenders for positions. It promises to be one of the most interesting pre-season practices the Bruins have had in years because of the battle for positions.

'Man Mountain' Wrestles Here In Garden Ring

Man Mountain Dean, who acted as Sergeant-of-Arms during the recent National Legion convention here, will return to Boston next Wednesday night in his favorite role of wrestler.

The bewhiskered Georgian, who has appeared in several movies since he wrestled here last, will face Gene Bowman of Tennessee on Paul Bowser's opening wrestling card of the indoor season at Garden next Wednesday night.

In the main bout of the inaugural card, Steve Casey, former champion, will take on the veteran Emil Dusek, one of the four wrestling brothers from Omaha.

Bowser plans to stage tournaments every week, and says he will bring back The Angel, current champion, as soon as the large-headed one completes his mid-west tour.

RETURN OF LANE, KAPLANOFF BOLSTERS BEARS AT TACKLE

There is relief in sight for Vic Obeck and Luke Linden, "iron men" tackles of the Boston Bears, Eddie Casey, manager of the club, announced today. Leslie Lane, big Nebraska tackle, who has been out with an injured shoulder, and Carl Kaplanoff, from Ohio State, will be fit for action against the New York Yankees at Fenway Park next Sunday, and that means the Bears will have four tip-top tackles ready for the first time this season.

It looks like another big day for the Boston team, which rolled up a 29-7 margin on the Cincinnati Bengals last Sunday, for Casey has been opening up the team's attack since he uncovered the two-way Nash-Patrick pass combination.

PROMISES TRICK STUFF

Fans cheered the touchdown pass which Tom Nash threw to Frank Patrick after apparently starting an end-around play last week, and Casey promises trick stuff for the Yankee test.

The Bears probably will line up against the Yanks Sunday in this fashion:

Ends, Joel Mason and Keith Ranspot; tackles, Leslie Lane and Carl Kaplanoff; guards, Warren Negri and Vic Marinc; center, Joe Ratica; backs, Jerry Donnell, Ernie Wheeler, Joe Yablonski and Frank Patrick.

More than 20 punters from a dozen high schools in and around Boston have entered the scholastic punting contest to be staged between the halves of the Bears-Yankees game.

Fred Ostergren of Arlington has entered Arthur Blanchard and Joe Aulenbach, his best booters, and Eddie Leary, center. Tom Whelan of Lynn English will have Delaney and Fuch; Tom Newell of Belmont, Bob Caskie and James Shedd; Charlie FitzGerald of Boston Latin, Tom Sullivan and Ed Lee, kickers, and Lawrence Redgate, center; Denny Gildea of Everett, Billy DeRosa and Rudolph Rombeli; punters, and Chester Fagluicca, center; Brother Wilfred of Malden Catholic High, Bob Mallon and Larry Jones, kickers, and Joe Harris, center; Bill Healey of Wakefield, Robert Amirault and John Conroy, kickers, and Phil Herron, center. Mitch Metivier of Rindge Tech, William Bingham and Frank French, kickers, and Bill Metivier, center; Harold Poole of Melrose, Jim Powell and Charlie Holt, kickers, and Frank Cain, center; and Nick Morris of Beverly, Gordon Miller, punter, and Enrico Lorenzis, center.

LOWELL DOMINATES GARDEN FIGHT CARD

It will be "Lowwell Night" next Monday at the Garden, where the Irish-American A. A. stages the third of its four Golden Gloves elimination tournaments.

Lowell's two leadiling listic citizens, New England Welterweight Champion Jimmy Mulligan and New England Juunior Welter Champion Dave Anddrews, are due to clash in the 147-pound class, and the entire town is exxpected to turn out to watch the worthy successors of durable Steeve Salek, who used to keep Lowell on the map several years back.

MULLIGAN'S CHIEF THREAT

Mulligan, a southpaw, displayed great fighting prowess last season, especially in the national championships at the Garden last April.

Andrews is Mulligan's chief threat this year for the N. E. senior title.

A third Lowell citizen, James Kelley, will compete in the 135-pound class, so it can be seen why Tom Kansly has tagged Monday "Lowell Night."

HAVERHILL SENDS COCOZZA

Other favorites who will appear Monday are Jim Bannon of Jamaica Plain, CYO representative, in the 118's; Fred Crowley, Dorchester, 135; Vince Sardo, a whizz-bang, and Mike Cocozza, Haverhill, both of whom will try to steal the play from the Lowell boys in the 147's.

There will be bouts in all eight championships classes, and the winners will qualify for the grand finals, to be held Oct. 28 in the Boston Arena.

Bees' Purchase Is Discussed By MacPhail

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 10 (AP)—Fay L. Murray, president of the Nashville Southern Association Baseball Club, said today that he and Larry MacPhail had discussed purchase of the Boston Bees, but that nothing definite had been done about it as yet.

"I talked with Larry last week," Murray said, "and the main difficulty is that McPhail can't conveniently sever his connection with the Brooklyn Dodgers. The proposition is still on."

Murray's Nashville club won the Southern Association pennant, the Shaughnessy playoff and the Dixie series championship.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 10 (AP)—Coach Earl Blaik demoted six of the Dartmouth team that started against Franklin and Marshall last Saturday in the most drastic shakeup during his six seasons here.

The only regulars assured of retaining their ratings were Captain Lou Young, Bob O'Brien and Roy Wolfe. The latter remained in the backfield that now includes Ted Arico, Don Norton and Ed Kast.
